GOULD HEIRESS GETS DIVORCE FROM CASTELLANE

COUNT BONI LOSES ALL

WHAT CASTELLANE DIVORCE MEANS

Boni loses his wife and three sons.
The count must pay the entire cost of divorce proceedings.
He must now live on the $7,000 granted his father for life by the Countess.
Declared a bankrupt, his debts are $5,000,000.
He loses his social position and membership in clubs.
As a bankrupt, the Count must resign from the Chamber of Deputies.
Countess Anna, at the age of thirty-one years, is free.
She can bring her children to America with the court's permission.
She is no longer responsible for Boni's extravagances.

French Court Frees Countess from Spendthrift Husband Who Now Faces Bankruptcy With $5,000,000 of Debts.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Divorce, absolute and final, was to-day granted the Countess de Castellane, who was Anna Gould of New York, by the Tribunal of the First Instance of the Seine, from the Count de Castellane. By the court's decree the wife is given the custody of their three children forever. With the permission of the court she may take them anywhere.

The Countess pays the Count no allowance and is responsible for none of his expenditures in the future.

Count Must Pay Whole Costs of Case.

By the Court's decree the Count is compelled to pay the entire costs of the proceedings. This forces him to formally become a bankrupt in the eyes of the law, and he will at once be compelled to resign his seat in the Chamber of Deputies, as no bankrupt may hold a seat there.

As read from the bench, the verdict was generally accepted as allowing Count Boni alimony amounting to $30,000 a year, but a closer perusal of the court's order later in the day revealed the fact that the defendant had not only been denied any allowance, but in addition had been assessed for the cost of the proceedings.

The possibility of Countess Anna's re-marriage is not touched in the court's decision, and the general interpretation is that she will be free to wed again should she choose.

MANY DUELS THREATENED.

By deciding the case from the documents submitted and by not having an open trial the Count was probably saved meeting in duels some of the husbands of the women who would have been brought into the case. There were twelve married and one single woman mentioned. Visions of duels were in the air here for a time, but they have now been dissipated.

While the Countess is given the custody of the children, George, Boni and Jay, Boni is to be allowed to see them twice each week at his mother's house, and will have them for a week during the Winter holidays and at Easter, as well as for a month every summer.

A notary will be appointed by the court to arrange a complete financial settlement between the parties.

DRAWS MORAL FROM CASTELLANE CASE

The BOSTON AMERICAN to-day presents to its readers a sermon by Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, bringing out the lessons that may be drawn from the De Castellane divorce. The sermon is as follows:

BY HERBERT S. JOHNSON,
Pastor of Warren Avenue Baptist Church.

If I owned a yellow dog and lacked a name for him I should call him Boni de Castellane!

Many an underpaid shop girl in Boston has achieved far more of real happiness and success in life than Anna Gould. It is better to have but one good meal a day in an attic room of a lodging house than to sit at a feast in a palace with a debauchee. It is better to have a lone kitten or a canary bird for a companion than a husband who despises his solemn vow.

American Girls Have Forgotten God

The trouble with many of our American girls who have wealth, and with many who do not have it, is that they do not know the real meaning of life. They have forgotten God. They would never be fascinated by the glamour of a great name or the glitter of a diadem or ribbon if they were able occasionally to catch a glimpse of the great judgment seat. The tallow candle is not bright when the sun has risen. Let our Americans come back to the family altar. Let us teach our girls to know at least enough about God so that they will bow before His name as readily as to before the coronet of a worn out French aristocrat.

Is it not a biting thought to many an Anna Gould that she has not been as useful to the world as her own cook or scrub woman? Taught by the tragedy of her unhappy home and that of Consuelo Vanderbilt shall not our American girls of every class, and especially the wealthy, turn to useful ideals? Let them know that one of the most effective forces for good righteousness in the United States ought to be the influence of the daughters of great American houses.

Have Leisure and Great Opportunity.

Such young women have abundance of leisure, or rather they might have it. They have the prestige of great wealth; they have peculiar opportunities for culture; they have money with which to carry out plans for the social betterment. Let them remember the poor children of the slums of our great cities. Is it necessary to spend $175,000 on a bedroom ceiling to insure happiness? Ten thousand dollars spent in the cause of Congo reform in the United States would save the people of the Congo Free State from the wretchedness of Hell.

Yes, five thousand dollars would free their black sisters from the horror of being cut into pieces like sheep and hogs, while still living, and then being roasted and eaten.

HOW BONI MET AND WON ANNA GOULD

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Penniless and his very travelling and lionizing expenses paid by a Paris restaurateur who represented his creditors, Count Boni de Castellane was sent to America in the Fall of 1894, to make good his debts by marrying an heiress. His title, a French badge of courtesy, was his only capital.

Ostensibly, Count Boni was the agent of a great Paris wine house, but in fact his expenses were paid as a last chance by his creditors, in the hope that he would catch and marry an American fortune with his empty title. The young man at first occupied a hall room in a modest boarding house. His financial backers saw to it that he was able to make a possible appearance.

Count Boni made his bow to real American society at Newport. There he became the rage, and his Paris creditors were delighted. He was backed more heavily. It was on the afternoon of February 6, 1895,

An Eye to Business.

They said that the wedding would take place within three weeks, and the Count, with an eye to serious business, notified his friends and creditors that he was to receive a settlement of $2,000,000 on the day of their marriage.

Miss Gould had been admired by many American men of position and responsibility. However, the count had been the guest of honor at his wedding. He had been a frequent visitor at George J. Gould's house in Lakewood, had followed the hounds in parties in which Miss Anna was always included, and his attentions had assumed so marked a degree and were so favorably received, that all other potential suitors withdrew.

Miss Gould was then but twenty-three

Francis Says He Will Fight to the Death; NEGRO SEIZES RIFLE

Mad Desperado Overpowers Man and Takes Gun Away from Him.

ROCKLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—Armed with a repeating rifle and ammunition which he seized from a hunter whom he overpowered, Minot St. Clair Francis, the convict who escaped from State prison at Thomaston on Monday, was seen near Lincolnville early to-day. Five hundred armed men are in hot pursuit of the desperado and are confident of soon coming up with him.

Early to-day a storekeeper of Lincolnville, four miles north of Camden, found that his place had been broken into and canned goods and other eatables taken. It is almost certain that Francis filled the stolen cans himself from starvation.

All the country around Camden is being scoured to-day by the posse of men and boys. Late last night a young man, who was coming back from the woods

GETTING READY FOR NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

A conference of New England Democrats called by Alexander Troup of New Haven and George Fred Williams of Boston, was held at the Quincy House to-day.

Although stories have been repeatedly published to the effect that the purpose of the conference was to establish a Bryan league in New England, the promoters said to-day that the purpose of the meeting was not specific in any respect, but was general in its scope and intended to foster the general condition and prospects of the Democratic party.

In excluding newspaper reporters from the conference, Mr. Williams said a report of the deliberations would be given out by Mr. Troup later in the day, when a recess would be taken. Asked if he would send the general idea of the gathering, Mr. Williams declined, saying all the points which the conferees desired to have reported would be embodied in Mr. Troup's statement to the press.

Fifteen Delegates Present.

Mr. Troup called the meeting to order at 11 o'clock. Fifteen delegates were present, three from Massachusetts, five from Connecticut, five from Rhode Island and two from New Hampshire.

Those present, besides Mr. Williams and Mr. Troup, were: George M. Wallace, Gen. Harrison H. Dodd of New Haven, Senator Kennedy of Norwalk, Ex-Governor Garvin of Rhode Island, George W. Greene of Pawtucket, Judge Frank E. Fitzsimmons of Warwick, Peter Providence, Napoleon J. Dyer and Henry T. Ledoux of New Hampshire, Major Robert J. Crowley of Lowell and William P. Connery of Lynn.

Invitations to the number of 100 were issued, and some responded from Vermont, but Fred W. Plaisted and Hon. Cyrus W. Davis, the latter late Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine, were invited, but were not present.

Prominent Democratic Leaders Absent.

Democratic leaders, national committeemen from Maine, also failed to attend. R. F. Dunn, Senator Smalley, Senator Hale, Senator Proctor, Congressman Grout and Congressman Powers of Vermont, did not respond. Mr. Maloney was the Democratic candidate for Governor of Vermont two years ago.

Governor-Elect Higgins Absent.

Governor-elect James E. Higgins of Rhode Island, the only Democratic winner in New England, and ex-Mayor John J. Fitzgerald of Fairhaven, R. I., the leader of the State Democracy, were absent.

The Massachusetts men invited were John B. Moran, Chairman John P. Feeney of the State Committee, Lieut. Governor-elect Haverhill, Colonel John P. Sweeney of Lawrence, William F. Connery of Lynn, Major Crowley of Lowell, William A. Davenport of Greenfield and Mr. Milligan.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, National Committeeman William A. Gaston, Josiah Quincy, Congressmen McNary, Sullivan and Keliher were not invited to the conference.

At 1:30 the conference, which had been in session unbroken for dinner, Chairman Alexander Troup called all the reporters in and gave out a portion of the proceedings, asked by Secretary Robert J. Crowley.

He said the meeting was the result of the trip to New York to welcome Mr. Bryan home.

Favor Public Control.

It was decided, he said, not to adopt a platform of principles, leaving that matter to the State and national conventions, but instead it was voted to hold meetings and debates in the various States, the matter being left to the following committee: George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, George M. Wallace of Connecticut, Dr. George L. Crockett of Maine, N. J. Dyer of New Hampshire, George W. Greene of Rhode Island.

Dr. Crockett of Maine, N. J. Dyer of New Hampshire, George M. Wallace of Connecticut, William P. Connery of Massachusetts and T. F. Fitzsimmons of Rhode Island were appointed a committee to name officers of the new organization.

It was voted to favor direct legislation, the initiative and the referendum and public control of public utilities. Dr. Crockett of Maine, Henry T. Ledoux of New Hampshire, Henry Lloyd of Massachusetts, George W. Greene of Rhode Island, Senator Donovan of Connecticut were appointed a committee to propagate these ideas throughout New England.

Ex-Governor Garvin of Rhode Island made a motion which was adopted that the consideration of candidates and platform be postponed for one year.

Troup Going to Nebraska.

After making this routine statement as to the proceedings, Mr. Troup was asked by several reporters if the meeting was not for the purpose of indorsing the nomination of Bryan.

"Decidedly not," was his reply, "and it is an unmitigated lie, wherever says so. His candidacy was never dreamed of, nor the candidacy of anybody else."

"Why did you not invite Mayor Fitzgerald, Colonel Gaston, Josiah Quincy, Congressman McNary and other leading Democrats?" was asked by one reporter.

"We left the whole matter with George Fred Williams. He could invite whom he pleased, and no doubt he did."

"Are you not going to Nebraska to see Mr. Bryan to tell him how this meeting came out?" was asked of Mr. Troup.

"Yes, I am going to Lincoln and will be at Mr. Bryan's house Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week. Of course, I will tell him of the meeting and anything else of interest."

Mr. Troup was asked a final question: "Was not this meeting for the purpose of organizing clubs throughout the New England States for Bryan?"

"Not especially for Bryan, but for any candidate the party nominates."

The meeting then adjourned to meet again at 3 o'clock.

George Fred Williams was called away from the conference while the discussion was going on, and some new arrivals, including Colonel Drinkwater, were reported.

years of age. She had been educated in Miss Sewenpugh's seminary in Boston, and was so exceedingly modest that few knew that she was the daughter of one of the most wealthy men of America.

Married March 4, 1895.

It was on March 4, 1895, that Count Boni de Castellane led Anna Gould to the altar. The wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, No. 857 Fifth avenue, New York, Archbishop Corrigan performing the ceremony. After the religious ceremony had taken place a civil knot was tied by Judge George T. Andrews of the Supreme Court of New York.

The Count and Countess spent a short honeymoon at the Gould country house at Lyndhurst. Three days after the wedding the couples sailed for Europe. Their arrangements in Paris began almost immediately upon their arrival. Three sons, George, Boni and Jay, were born to them. In the little more than eleven years of marriage they have spent $15,000,000, nearly all of Anna Gould's portion of her father's estate.

COUNTESS HAS NOT LIVED WITH COUNT FOR MANY MONTHS

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Blanche, as Count Boni de Castellane and Countess Anna did, into all sorts of extravagance immediately after their marriage in 1895. It was not until the fourth year of their wedded life that it was asserted in both America and France that the Count's financial affairs were in a bad condition and that he was being continually harassed by creditors.

The announcement was made here in 1900 that Countess Anna's fortune had been placed in the ownership of her brother, George J. Gould, by the French courts. It was stated that this was done at the instance of the Gould family.

On February 2 of this year it was announced that the Count and Countess Anna de Castellane were living apart on the heels of this report came the statement that a suit for divorce would follow.

Had Violent Quarrels.

Not only the financial excesses of Count Boni, it was said, led to this denouement, but his social adventures. He was talked of on the Boulevards and finally many rumors came to the ears of the Countess, who was furious. Scenes often took place between them, and were violent quarrels.

On October 31 the divorce suit was begun in the Tribunal of the First Instance of the Seine before Judge Henry Dicre. Maitre Crapet appeared for the plaintiff and Maitre Bonnefon Craponne for the defendant.

The Count Boni had recently struck and slapped his fair American countess during the frequent scenes between them. He accused the husband was designating Henry Wagstaff Gorman, the well known American, as one of alleged unfaithfulness on the part of Countess Boni. Gorman's name has been much talked of since Anna and Boni separated.

DIVORCED: HIS PLEADINGS ARE IN VAIN.

Demanded Absolute Divorce.

Maitre Crapet opened the hearing by demanding an absolute divorce and the custody of the children for his client. He declared that it was Boni's practice when demanding money to slap the Countess. A letter from Mrs. Millington Drexel was exhibited which showed that the couple's difficulties had begun three months after their marriage. Anna had only purchased domestic peace by the sacrificing of her entire income.

The trial was full of surprises. The innumerable creditors of Count Boni each day stormed the courtroom and made demand right to have his financial suits disposed of before the divorce trial was proceeded with. They lost.

Before the trial was while efforts were being made to hush the trouble out of court, $5,000,000, the whereabouts of which Boni from his creditors, was the cry he demanded on accepting, without protest, a separation. He was refused, and both lose all.

M. Bonnet was counsel for the count.

MORGAN IS ON SCENE IN PULLMAN SCANDAL

NEW YORK FINANCIER HASTENS TO SECRET MEETING OF DIRECTORS IN CHICAGO.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Discovery of the Pullman company's secret pass list, with the names of more than 500 prominent holders of passes on it and the announcement of Maxwell Eder, special attorney for the city, that he would be present at the annual meeting this afternoon when the $25,000,000 surplus is divided, caused a secret meeting of directors to be held in the noon to-day and brought J. Pierpont Morgan here from New York.

Mr. Morgan arrived on the Twentieth Century Limited and went at once to the Chicago Club, arriving there at o'clock. He had breakfast and then went over to the Pullman company's office. Mr. Morgan, alone and dressed quietly, walked in with the directors, who had gathered in President Robert T. Lincoln's office in the Pullman building.

His arrival created quite a stir, as he was unannounced.

The secretary to Secretary Weinheimer made the statement when he found that meeting was no longer a secret to everybody except the directors.

"This meeting, an advance one is of the directors' board is called for the purpose of acting upon Mr. Lincoln's resignation which, it is know, of course, has been tendered."

STANDARD OIL OFFERED $1,500 TO BRIBE JUROR

BRAZEN ATTEMPT AT CORRUPTION DURING OHIO CONSPIRACY TRIAL.

FINDLAY, Ohio, Nov. 14.—A $1,500 bribe was the shape of a direct offer, for a disagreement of the Hancock county conspiracy jury, which tried and convicted the Standard Oil Company of Ohio on charges of criminal conspiracy, was made to Juror Edward C. G. Meyers, one of twelve jurors, during the trial of the case.

The first offer was made by Meyers to the effect that if he would stand out for acquittal he would be richer by $1,500. Meyers declined. The identity of the would-be-briber has not been established.

The second offer was more brazen. It came in the basement of the court house, when some man, at present unknown, showed the juror a big roll of bills and tendered them to him.

Both offers were made by the same man and both were declined. The identity of the would-be-briber has not been established.

$65,000,000 LOSS TO JOHN D. IN OIL SLUMP

NEW YORK, 14.—Attacked by the federal government, the market value of the Standard Oil Company has fallen within the year $125,000,000. The stock sold today at the lowest point reached in years. The slump has involved John D. Rockefeller's money pile to either $65,000,000. Well informed bulls that the efforts of the government to break up the trust will be met by the operations of Standard Oil in other lines are carefully mapped. The Government's suit will bring more light on the underground methods of the oil trust's backers in the financial district today as if nothing can stay the slump in Standard Oil, what will happen when the administration inserts the probe in the allied trusts of Standard Oil?

SON OF FORMER SENATOR BRICE WEDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Stewart M. Brice, the millionaire soldier, clubman and man about town, son of the late Senator Calvin S. Brice of Ohio, last night married Miss Catherine W. Mount in the home of Mrs. Dollie Kelsey, No. 505 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. He preferred to have the ceremony performed there quietly rather than in his home at No. 693 Fifth avenue.

Small Holders Selling.

Four years ago Standard Oil sold for $700 a share, and May 1 sold on the curb for $575. With a capitalization of $100,000,000 the market value of the company has shrunken $265,000,000. Today there appeared to be little support to the stock. Small holders are selling, feeling that the government would deal the trust a body blow and cause its dissolution.

Last January Standard Oil sold for $600 a share. President Roosevelt told the department of justice to go ahead with its suit against the trust. Henry H. Rogers, vice-president of Standard Oil, and John D. Archbold hurried to Washington. Then came the indictment. The stock began to go to pieces. Little attention was paid to the decline, which was forcing trading, until it went a less to John D. or $600 each. With the stock sunk at $575 today, Senator Brice considered here for the decline would go.

GIRL MAY SAVE SWEETHEART IN MURDER TRIAL

HERKIMER, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Chester E. Gillette, charged with the murder of Grace Brown, whose drowned body was found in Big Moose Lake, tells to Nettie Benedict, his sweetheart, to save him from the electric chair.

"The girl I love is to be my best witness," said Gillette today. "She will prove I am guiltless."

Through the long hours of the day Nettie Benedict sits watching Gillette.

The jury was filled yesterday, but peremptory challenges made it necessary to call other jurors today. The taking of testimony began this afternoon.

Before he met Grace Brown was peculiarly associated. The theory of the prosecution is that Gillette lured Miss Brown to the lake and drowned her that he might marry Nettie Benedict, who is reported to be wealthy. The two girls were not engaged and there was no love between them.

TROOPING OF COLORS AT FAIR OF W. R. C.

Friends of the Women's Relief Corps crowded Paul Revere Hall, Mechanics' building, last night after the meeting function of a two days' fair inaugural. The "trooping of the colors" was the most important ceremony of the evening and was carried out by seven elected Army boots. The entertainment included old fashion greet lines from patriotic societies in the State.

5 CANDIDATES INDORSED BY LABOR UNIONS

Five candidates were endorsed for nomination at tomorrow's caucuses by labor organizations which met last night. The Workers' Union and Labor Bureau of Boston organizations which met last night. The Workers' Union No. 56, Laundry Wagon Drivers' Union and Boot and Shoe Makers' Union No. 1.

The Ward 22 Wage-Earners' Club voted to indorse the ward committee, headed by Thomas P. Green, for the municipal delegation headed by William J. Nawn.

Thomas P. Green was indorsed for the Common Council from Ward 22. Wage-Earners' Club.

GREET A. O. H. CHIEF TO-NIGHT AT BANQUET

That the friends of Matthew Cummings are eager to show the regard in which they hold him is demonstrated by the acceptance of invitations to the banquet which will be given to-night at the Somerset in honor of the national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The committee in charge reports a splendid response, indicating a general desire to honor Mr. Cummings.

In addition to having the satisfaction which a part in such a testimonial confers, the guests will enjoy an excellent program of speaking and music. The speakers will be Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Rev. John D. Kennedy of Danbury, Ct., national chaplain, A. O. H.; Joseph F. O'Connell, John A. Sullivan, Mr. Cummings, Charles F. Riordan will be toastmaster.

The musical program will comprise orchestral selections of Irish airs, the orchestra being under the direction of Carl Behr, and singing by a quartet, John B. Donovan, Michael F. Dillon, Edward A. McGonagle and John J. Magan.

The arrangement of the tables will be particularly attractive. Instead of being seated in long rows, the guests will be placed at tables accommodating six each.

'CHICK' STAHL WINS IN GAME OF MATRIMONY

At the church of St. Francis de Sales in Vernon street, Roxbury, today, the Rev. Joseph H. Harrigan officiated when Miss Mary Hayden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hayden of No. 91 Leon street, Roxbury, was united in marriage to Charles Stahl of Fort Wayne, Ind.

And in the same church ceremonial paragraph it is recorded that

"Chick" Stahl, one of baseball's most noted players, who succeeded Jimmy Collins as manager of the Boston American baseball team, and who piloted the team to a pennant victory, leaving shortly afterward, by orders of Colonel Ed Hanlon, to manage the Boston Nationals. It was the first time in the history of baseball that a manager of a team in one league went over to the other league to manage a club. Stahl's leaders by getting together a firm grip on the young team, which finished in the first division last season.

Stahl's bride is well known in Roxbury, a fine girl on the young side. Chick, himself, is a young man of parts, also.

THAW'S TRIAL TO BEGIN DEC. 3

PRISONER SAYS, "I'LL BE FREE BY CHRISTMAS"

Prosecution Thinks the Case Will Require Only Four Weeks.

DIVIDED INTO TWO PARTS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Harry Kendall Thaw will be put on trial for the killing of Stanford White on December 3 or 4, before Recorder Goff in the Court of General Sessions. This was decided by the District Attorney's office to-day.

The prosecution to-day completely settled upon its manner of handling what will prove to be one of the most sensational murder trials in the history of New York County. It was the belief in the District Attorney's office that the trial will last only four weeks, the most difficult and lengthiest part of its according to expectations being the empanelling of the jury.

After a jury is finally secured the District Attorney will take just four days in his presentation of the case against Thaw. Two days more will be required by the District Attorney for rebuttal testimony and cross-examination, and another week is allowed the defense. The District Attorney's office feels confident that the defense will not take more than a week for its side of the case, for the reason that a list of witnesses will not be furnished to testify because the District Attorney will not address what they are expected to refute.

"Made Threats to Kill."

The prosecution's case is divided into two parts. The first part will be devoted to showing by witnesses how intouch with the District Attorney's office that Harry Thaw carried a revolver for two years before the shooting and that he made frequent threats to kill Stanford White, thus establishing premeditation—the basis of murder in the first degree.

Then the District Attorney will jump to the night of the shooting on the roof of Madison Square Garden. He will show how Thaw entered the middle the fantastical performance was going on and creeping behind unobserved on the left side reached White's table and shot him down.

To clear pieces of the case, according to the present plans of the District Attorney, will be gone into.

Thaw believes that before Christmas Day he will be liberated from the Tombs and be able to join in a happy family reunion with the seal of a jury's approval stamped upon the tragic act on the Madison Square roof garden, which cost the life of Stanford White.

"Will Be Free by Christmas."

Thaw flew from his cell to meet his wife when she made her usual daily call and in his joy he danced around for as if no tragedy had entered their life and as if he thought of the journey of the great legal machinery operated by the State had not entered his mind.

"I will be free by Christmas," he shouted. "I know it. I feel it. My days in this place are numbered. How glorious it will be at home." He took his young wife's hands in his own and for a full minute she gazed hopefully into each others eyes in the cheerless Tombs corridor.

When their interview ended and the goodby kiss was given, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw said in a ringing tone: "I know you will be free, Harry, and I hope before Christmas."

Thaw had two tailors come to his cell in the Tombs to-day, where they measured him for three new suits of clothes. He intends to put in the best possible appearance at the time White's relatives were measuring him. Thaw said to them:

"I'm very particular that these clothes shall fit well when I'm sitting down. I don't care so much if they don't fit quite so well when I'm standing up."

Almost statements from counsel for Thaw and others have been made that the prisoner was breaking down under the great physical strain and might collapse entirely if his trial were again delayed, according to the official report made yesterday by Dr. Frank P. McGuire, the Tombs physician, to the District Attorney. Thaw is in better physical condition than he has been for a long time.

Believes in Delmas.

The District Attorney's office, through its agent in the Tombs, has kept a close watch upon Thaw, and keepers who see him daily say there is nothing in his speech to indicate any dark spots in his mind, unless the frequent hints which he flies when ever his offence is mentioned may be taken to indicate an unbalanced mind.

One thing that has added to the confidence of Thaw is the assertion of Delphin Michael Delmas, the "Napoleon" of the San Francisco bar, as the chief counsel for the defence, who will in all probability act as the trial lawyer in court, that "I am perfectly confident," said Lawyer Delmas yesterday, "that Harry Thaw will be acquitted, from what I know of the case. No jury will convict him. I cannot in fairness to my client outline the defence, but it is a legal and competent one and merits the approval of any right-thinking man."

ACTRESS SAYS SHE HELPED THAW AND WIFE FOOL CROWD

Because of her acquaintance with Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and the statements made about the case after the arrest of Harry K. Thaw, it is believed that the testimony of Miss Hattie Forsythe, the young actress of Providence, will prove of the greatest importance in the case when it is called to trial.

Miss Forsythe, while she knew both Harry Thaw and his wife, denies that she has any knowledge of any adequate reason for the tragedy that occurred on the Madison Square Roof Garden.

To a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN she said:

"I was never what I should call an intimate friend of Mrs. Thaw. We lived at the Hotel Cumberland in New York, it happened by accident that Harry and Evelyn came there and put up for a few days. I had not seen them since I met them in Paris.

"Then I saw them at the hotel for a little time. About that time there was a lot of excitement as to whether Thaw and Evelyn were married. I never thought anything about it. I took it for granted that they were. Finally Thaw appealed to me, and I did what I could to help him. This was in New York.

"It was the day that he and Miss Nesbit were ordered out of the Cumberland Hotel. Harry came to me and asked me to feed the crowd. There was a big crowd in the street and they were looking for him and for Evelyn. He made the suggestion that I superintend Evelyn and go out in his carriage with him. He planned that by doing this Evelyn and he would be able to get to the Waldorf-Astoria and nobody would discover it. I did my part and it was successful. We got to the Waldorf and nobody discovered Evelyn.

"That's all I know about this trouble. That's all I will be able to testify to if I am called upon as a witness stand."

CHILDREN STOLE FROM SMITH GIRLS

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 14.—Mysterious thefts of money, watches and jewelry from the rooms of the students at Smith College were explained yesterday when two girls, Mary Whalen, twelve years old, and Annie Sinchnde, thirteen years old, confessed in the Juvenile Court that they had stolen the valuables.

ROOSEVELT SHOVELS COAL; EATS WITH MEN

President Takes Hand in Activities of Crew on Board the Louisian.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 14.—President Roosevelt is making a new record for himself strenuously, and at the same time is being idolized by the crew of the battleship Louisiana, on which he is sailing for Panama, for he has messed with the men, and even gone down into the stokehole and shoveled coal.

Just before the pilot left the big battleship Walter F. Whitehead of Cleveland, the assistant electrician, wrote a letter to his family, who live at No. 1446 East Eighty-sixth street, this city, and told them what President Roosevelt was doing. He wrote:

"The President is going to eat his next meal with the crew. He is now going down in one of the storerooms to shovel coal for a while. He likes to do a little of everything. He is bound to find out everything for himself. It does not take him long to find out things.

"If you would see him you would like him. He is no jollier, but an everyday man. He does not leave it to head officers, he goes right among the men, and he certainly likes boys, but seems to be a man who can be stern when he likes."

TUTTLE SAYS COUNSEL QUIT

President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine Railroad to-day confirmed the news announced yesterday that General Frank S. Streeter, for many years chief counsel of the railroad in New Hampshire, has resigned. President Tuttle would not discuss the report that General Streeter resigned to begin a campaign for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Burnham, the present junior senator of New Hampshire. President Tuttle said:

"I believe the resignation may have any political significance for General Streeter. I cannot say what President Tuttle did for as the Boston & Maine is concerned, however, I can and will say that it has absolutely none."

WON LOVE OF PRINCE; IS TO BE BANISHED

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Banishment for Marie Suhrer, the opera singer who captured Prince Joachim of Prussia, cousin of the Kaiser, who says he will marry her has been added to the Prince's exile, according to dispatches from Berlin.

By marrying Baron von Lichenberg to get a title, Marie made herself an Austrian subject. She has now been informed that she is an undesirable alien. Prince Joachim has been ordered to Germany South west Africa to serve in the colonial army.

CAN DRIFT TO THE POLE, SAYS NANSEN

Norwegian Explorer Says Peary's Expedition Points Way to Triumph.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Fridtjof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, has been convinced by the explorations of Lieutenant Peary that the proper method to reach the north pole is to allow a ship to drift with the huge ice packs. Such an attempt will require probably five or six years.

Nansen expresses his opinion in an article in the Readers. He says, in part:

"I have great admiration for the indomitable energy of America's Arctic explorer. The result of his expedition is to my mind very valuable additions to our knowledge of the polar regions, especially the movement of the ice.

"It is my opinion that a drifting expedition could make the pole. The ship should get as far north as possible, through Beaufort Sea, make fast to the ice and be allowed to drift. I am confident this would carry her across the pole. The ship would emerge after five or six years between Greenland and Spitzbergen. This method is longer than that required by sledge, but it would be more satisfactory scientifically. Five years spent on such a ship would result in the acquirement of knowledge which can be gained in no other way."

MISS FARRAR FEARS CRITICS IN AMERICA

Prima Donna Says She Has Heard of Severity of Writers Here.

PRAISES GERMAN PEOPLE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"And the Crown Prince, eh? Well, you ask me? Oh those old stories, they were so absurd, so absolutely ridiculous," said Miss Geraldine Farrar, the former Melrose, Mass., girl, who has become one of the most famous opera stars in Europe, when talking about her success and her hopes yesterday.

"I am studying in Berlin and other European capitals, I must confess to a feeling of nervousness as I return to sing for the first time in my native land," she continued, adding to the answer.

Miss Farrar has scored a succession of triumphs abroad and has been a prime donna with the Royal Opera Company of Berlin for four years. Eight years ago, when sixteen, she left her home in Boston and went to Berlin to study with Lilli Lehmann. Fifteen months later she was singing with the Royal Opera Company. She now returns for the first time in the land of her birth for what her friends believe will be a record breaking season of wonderful success abroad.

"You see it is this way," said the youthful star with sincerity.

Imbued with German Ideals.

"I have spent so much time in Germany that I am thoroughly imbued with the German ideas. I am very simple minded, and I hope you will like that here. I have no affectations, indeed, my training has cut that any departure from the natural was frowned upon.

"I was happy in singing in Berlin. There was no nervous strain, no fuss and feathers. Singing twice or three times a week was like saying a lesson. Critics did not turn and rend me if perhaps I did not sing well one night as another. I have heard—perhaps it isn't true, I hope not—that things are different in America.

"Miss Farrar is remarkably attractive. She has an abundance of dark hair, most becomingly arranged—the Kaiser thought so, even though she refused to appear with trained nurses when she sang before him as "Marguerite." Big blue-gray eyes that do not change color, and which, with the wonderful voice, made possible for the Boston girl the conquest of Europe.

Both her mother and her father, who was a famous ex baseball player in the National League years ago, are in constant attendance upon their talented daughter in her apartment at the Netherland.

"Is it true, Miss Farrar, that you replied when Miss Farrar was asked if she intended to marry a title, that—

"No, indeed, she will not. She hasn't any title to marry, and I'm not German enough."

Crown Prince Story Ridiculous.

"And the Crown Prince—what about him, you ask me? Ah, those old stories; they were so absurd, so absolutely ridiculous," she repeated. "And I like the Kaiser. He has been so good, so kind, and he is the most democratic of men, but you must remember I sang for two years before I am entitled to the honor of a court singer, and I want that honor. I have lived there eight years."

FEDERATION WILL MAKE NATIONAL 8-HOUR FIGHT

GREAT LABOR CONVENTION MAKES "NO WAGE REDUCTION IN FUTURE" PART OF SLOGAN.

By Frank K. Foster.

Special to the Boston American.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 14.—According to the report of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, made yesterday to the convention by President James Duncan of Quincy, less than $8,000 was expended by that body during the last political campaign in its efforts to defeat hostile candidates, and of this not one penny was contributed by any candidate for office. The amount of campaigning accomplished with this comparatively insignificant sum was quite extensive and indicative of what might be done with ample means.

The report also detailed work done by the council during the past year in arriving at an understanding with European unions as to the mutual exchange of working cards.

Progress was reported of a closer alliance with the farmers' associations of the country for the promotion of mutual interests.

The council made little progress in adjusting the vexed jurisdiction issues referred to it by the convention of last year, and the old straw will probably have to be threshed over again by the present session of the federation.

Not a New Policy.

Replying to statements that the present political policy of the Federation was a new one, Mr. Duncan read excerpts from at least a dozen of the reports of past conventions and in which the independent use of the ballot by organized labor was upheld and urged, and declared that to defeat its enemies and reward its friends had always been the consistent policy of the organization.

The report of the fraternal delegates to Great Britain dwelt at some length on the labor union political movement there and declared that the probability of a labor party was not imminent, but that independent voting was on the increase among union men. Tables were submitted showing the universal strength of the British and Continental movement to be over 4,000,000 individuals, of whom nearly 1,000,000 were women.

A protest was lodged by the Boilermakers' Union against the meeting of Delegate Gompers and J. Lynch from the Boston Central Labor Union, on account of the last named organization's action in admitting a seceding union of boilermakers. The credential committee referred the protest and the delegate was seated.

For the first time a fraternal delegate is seated from a theological organization, the Rev. Charles Stelzle of the Church Society for the Advancement of Labor receiving that distinction.

There is no truth in the rumor that Mitchell is to run as candidate against Gompers for president. No opposition is in sight.

"Eight Hours" the Slogan.

The economic slogan of the Federation will be "eight hours and no wage reduction in the future."

Boston "Denny" Driscoll made a strong speech against the proposition to take a half holiday next Saturday, but it carried.

British fraternal delegates Gee and Bell got a real glad hand when formally presented to the convention.

An important conference was held yesterday of the fraternal delegates representing the various crafts having union labels, for the purpose of considering the feasibility of adopting an "universal label" to be placed on all goods, as a substitute for the individual craft labels. It was the consensus of opinion that such a change was impracticable at present and it was left to motion of President Lynch of the International Typographical Union.

E. G. PRESTON ON FANNIE RICE HOSPITAL BOARD

Among the nominations made by Governor Guild to-day at a meeting of the executive council is that of Ewen G. Preston of Woburn, to be a trustee of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital. Mr. Preston is at present treasurer of the R. H. White Company, the firm that precipitated the big entrance into the dry goods business he was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Other nominations made by the Governor are: Adjutant-General James A. Frye of Boston, formerly Major-General Joseph M. Peters of Salem, and George H. Cox of Cambridge, to be the new commission to operate the expense of maintenance of all armories in the State; Loyd L. Chamberlain of Brockton, to be Judge of the Plymouth County Probate Court; Sumner A. Chapman of Hanson, to be Register of Probate for Plymouth County.

ANN RICE IN ASYLUM?

LOWELL, Nov. 14.—"Tolly" Fannie Rice, who has charmed thousands with her singing and dancing, and who was known as one of the best comedienne on the vaudevillean stage has produced, is reported to be suffering from a mental breakdown in a sanitarium in Bridgeport, Ct.

Miss Rice, whose husband is Dr. Purdy, is well known socially in Boston, was born here forty-eight years ago. Thirty years ago she began her theatrical career at the old Bijou Theatre in Boston. She married Dr. Purdy, formerly Joseph M. Peters, in Dr. Purdy, when Miss Rice bade adieu to the stage.

"I might never have written a book if I had not had the inspiration and protection and freedom from care which my husband gives me."—Eleanor Gates, author of "The Plow Woman," to Eleanor Ames.

ELEANOR GATES SAYS MARRIAGE HELPS WOMAN WIN HER CAREER

Wrote One of Six Best Selling Books of Year and Declares She Ought to Know.

By Eleanor Ames.

A SLENDER, fair-haired, young woman stood up in one of the boxes of the Majestic Theatre last night and waved her handkerchief and shed tears of joy when the tumult of applause called David Belasco and Richard Walton Tully before the curtain to tell them that "The Rose of the Rancho" was a great, big success.

She was Eleanor Gates, the author of "The Plow Woman," which ranks as one of the six best selling and most read books of the year.

But just at that moment, her own triumphs were forgotten; her own success submerged in the happiness and pride which she felt in the success that had come to her husband.

For in private life Eleanor Gates is Mrs. Richard Walton Tully and last night she was the happiest woman in Boston.

Earlier in the day I met and talked with Mrs. Tully at her apartments in the Touraine.

When I came away I carried with me the impression that I had been in the presence, not only of a brilliant woman, but of a contented, happy wife.

One hears much of the petty jealousies which wreck the lives of artists who marry. There is loud advice about the woman with a career eschewing matrimony.

Eleanor Gates Tully laughs to absurdity the one statement and denies the other.

"Marriage a hindrance to career?" she repeated. "No, indeed. It is a help."

It has increased my ability to work tremendously.

"I might never have written a book if I had not had the inspiration and protection and freedom from care which my husband gives me."

"I think any woman should be more successful knowing that she has a husband to care for her and protect her and share all things with her."

Eleanor Gates is more than a clever woman. She is remarkable.

Her two books, "The Biography of a Prairie Fire" and "The Plow Woman," picturing as they do the strong, homely, wholesome life of the plains, give you an idea of the writer.

She writes of her own land, of her own people, the neighbors on the next ranch, the life she knows so well because until a few years ago it was her own life.

Born on a ranch in the Dakotas, Eleanor Gates was brought up in the wild out-doors.

She sprang almost from her cradle to the saddle.

Her brothers were cowboys, and until she was a girl well in her teens she herded cattle with them.

Until she was nineteen years old she had never seen a big city. Imagine what that means to a girl in these days!

Then she went to San Francisco and entered the University of California.

"In college I wrote a few little things," she says modestly, "and later I went into newspaper work. Seven years ago I was on the San Francisco Examiner.

"I gave that up to write for newspapers, and the fascination of the work has never left me.

At the present time Eleanor Gates calls New York home, and there in an uptown apartment hotel she is writing a new book.

"Of New York life?" I asked.

"No," she replied. "Of Oklahoma. I don't feel that I know New York, but I do know the plains, every inch of them. It is in the West that I find most inspiration. People do so much in the West. We have no leisure class there, no smart set idlers. Even the man-idle set are interested in municipal affairs or something of importance. When they want to become simply smart set idlers, they turn East.

"Just now, in the Cosmopolitan, Miss Gates is writing a series of articles very near to her heart.

They tell the story of "The Girl Who Travels Alone."

"Western girls must come East," she argues, "and the East to most of them means New York.

"The conduct of New York to these girls is amazing.

"The annoying of women in that city is outrageous.

"The born and bred New York woman ignores it. She goes about looking neither to the right nor the left and pays no attention. The Western girl is not used to such treatment. She has been used to freedom and courtesy from all men. And she resents, where the New York woman ignores.

"I believe because so many women have turned and stood for their rights that there is a healthier public spirit. Woman has a right to be abroad.

She is not usually out in the world of her own choosing. Generally she has to be to earn food and shelter and clothes. And she must be respected."

Eleanor Gates, author of "The Plow Woman."

MAKES FIGHT ON OWNERSHIP

Michael J. Reddy of Ward 15 is making a contest for the Common Council on a platform the principal plank of which is "public ownership of public utilities."

Last night Mr. Reddy spoke in Ward 15, and invited any of his seventeen opponents to meet him and discuss the questions of the day.

Mr. Reddy has a labor record as a member of the Legislature which should help, and has also served with credit in the Common Council several years ago, so that he is eminently qualified by experience for the place.

Lady Sunday, the Telegraphers' Union, of which Mr. Reddy is a member, indorsed his candidacy.

ANDOVER MAY MERGE.

ANDOVER, Nov. 14.—The trustees of the Andover Theological Seminary have received a proposition to merge with the University of Illinois.

Captain Allen T. Hodge of Washington says: "Father John's Medicine cured me of a bad attack of lung trouble and surprised my family physician, who said the medicine was 'All right and ought to be in every family.'" Physicians prescribe it and have for years. No opium, morphine or other poisonous drugs—not a patent medicine, but prescribed by an eminent specialist for the late Rev. Fr. John O'Brien of St. Patrick's Parish, Lowell, Mass., fifty years ago.

CURLEYS FEAR ROUT AS WARD 17 FIGHT ENDS

Opponents of Tammany Men Have Whirlwind Series of Rallies To-night.

POINTED QUESTIONS ASKED

Tonight, in Ward 17, will witness the close of the vigorous campaign that the anti-Tammanyites of the ward have been making to oust the Curleys, James M. and Thomas F., who have for the past few years bossed and controlled the political affairs of the ward for their own personal ends. Both have records that are being urged as reasons why they should no longer be retained in control.

James M. Curley is now an alderman and is seeking re-election, while Thomas F. is a Senator-elect. Had it not been for a technical mistake in the papers of former Representative John J. Mansfield, Thomas F. Curley would have been defeated in his candidacy.

Fight of Their Lives.

To-night the anti-Curleyites will make a whirlwind tour of Ward 17, holding rallies in all sections, in the interests of John F. Lanergan, their candidate for the board against James M. Curley, and the three anti-Tammany candidates for the Common Council, John D. Connors, Thomas F. Phelan and John W. Hennessey.

That the Curleys realize they have the fight of their lives this year to retain control of the ward, and that they fear defeat, was shown when on Monday they went to the Municipal Court and asked for a warrant for Lanergan, on the grounds of criminal libel, which was refused. The circulars in which James M. Curley claims he is libeled and which are issued over his opponent's signature are having a damaging effect upon the Tammany candidate, and he realizes it.

In one, the mildest of the lot, with which Lanergan has flooded the district, the legislative records of himself and "Jim" Curley are compared, much to the detriment of Curley. In another he accuses Curley of being responsible for the action of the three Tammany Councilmen dodging the municipal lighting question in the City Council early in the year and asks:

"Where Did You Get It?"

"Were the Consolidated Gas Company and the Edison Electric Company interested in the defeat of the bill?" Curley is further asked to name a single improvement he has secured for Ward 17 during his three years' service in the Board of Aldermen. Curley's leadership in behalf of the National Dock Trust Company in the board last year on the notorious East Boston grab is also rigorously scored.

Curley is declared in the circular to be responsible for the employment of Polanders at $10 a month on certain contracts held by Tammany men, whom Lanergan says are under Curley's control. Lanergan says:

"You are estimated to be worth between $25,000 and $40,000, yet six years ago you did not have a cent. Where did you get it?"

CONGRESS ON CONSUMPTION MEETS TO-DAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—In order to consider ways and means for an intelligent and successful warfare on the "White plague," the American International Congress on tuberculosis, with delegates from all the important countries in Europe and South America, begin a three-days' session this afternoon at the Hotel Astor.

Canada will be largely represented in the Congress as the outcome of an invitation extended by Secretary of State Root to every nation of both American continents, with an idea of combating the plague through a liberal interchange of ideas on local phases of the disease under different climatic conditions.

During the session the Medico-Legal Society of New York will entertain the guests of honor, representing the medical profession of New York. On to-morrow night a dinner will be tendered to the guests at the Hotel Astor, at which Clarke Bell will preside.

Dr. F. E. Daniels of Austin, Tex., who has spent his life in fighting tuberculosis, has been selected to preside over the congress.

SCORES SHAY AS NAWN'S MAN; FOE TO LABOR

Clarkson Declares Opponent for Aldermanic Nomination Is Corporation Candidate.

"WAS POSTED BY UNION."

At a rally in the Roxbury court house, Roxbury street, Ward 21, last night, Attorney Robert P. Clarkson, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Board of Aldermen, in the Sixth District, characterized Harry Nawn as the man who had for years milked both the ward and the city, and his aldermanic candidate, Michael Shay, as the worst foe of organized labor in Roxbury.

"Shay is Nawn's heeler," said Clarkson, "Shay employs no union labor. He is the bitterest enemy of labor that the painters have in Roxbury. He is the corporation candidate for alderman. If he were elected he would be controlled by the Boston Elevated, the Boston Gas Company and the Edison Light Company and those concerns that are using the streets of Boston daily."

Mr. Clarkson told how Nawn was a stockholder in the Boston Elevated, how his teams were given $1.25 a load for work that the Elevated's own teams could do for seventy-seven cents, how he delivered the delegates of Ward 21 to Gaston and kept them supplied that they might be swung any way that Gaston or Whitney wanted.

"Shay has sat in the ward committee for years, a chair warmer, a man with no independence, one who said after Harry Nawn spoke, 'me too, Harry.' He has never been active in the Democratic party, never done anything for the party, never made a speech, never held office. He is only Harry Nawn's candidate."

Mr. Clarkson told how Shay's paint shop had been posted as unfair by the business agent of the Painters' Union. "I have been indorsed by the Ware Farmer Club and Shay has been denounced," said the speaker.

SEEK WOMAN IN AUTO AS THIEF

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—One thousand dollars in jewelry was stolen from the home of Miss Evelyn Goldit, No. 261 Fifth avenue, in broad daylight, yesterday afternoon, and the Tenderloin police are looking for a dikes-gowned, diamond-be-decked woman in an automobile, to charge her with the daring robbery.

Miss Goldit, who is a teacher of physical culture and numbers among her clientele some of the richest and most socially prominent women in the Four Hundred.

Miss Goldit reported that among other jewelry, the thieves took three diamond rings, valued at $50 each; a pearl studded ring, $120; a necklace, $170; a brooch, $150, and a diamond studded bracelet, $10.

POLICEMAN SHOUTED 23 AT SKIDDU FIRE

Fire was discovered early today in the house occupied by Dominick Shidea, at the corner of Parson and North Margin streets, by Patrolman Murray. He shouted twenty-three to the occupants and they all ran out. The blaze was started by rats igniting matches. The damage was slight.

MISSION BOARD AT 39TH CONVENTION

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—The thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Women's Board of Missions, with delegates present from all the New England States and from as far south as Delaware, opened here to-day with a devotional meeting. The meetings will continue through Thursday.

IRISH CONCERT BY ST. BRENDANS

Irish music was given last night at a concert at Association Hall, corner Berkeley and Boylston streets, by the Knights of St. Brendan, an organization composed entirely of former residents of County Kerry, Ireland, and their descendants. The object of the concert was to raise funds to aid in the establishment of an Irish choral union.

BOY STOLE RIDE ON TRAIN, FELL, MAY DIE

While trying to steal a ride, Nicholas Babyonis, eleven years old, of No. 198 Elmo street, Dorchester, was run over by a freight train near the Mt. Bowdoin station last night and may die.

There's Only One Antiseptic Soap

Other soap makers may tell you they make antiseptic soap, but we're the only ones can prove it.

Phenol Absolut is not only the best antiseptic known, but it's the only one that can be put into soap and kept there —all other antiseptics quickly dry out and evaporate. James Buchan is the only man who ever discovered how to combine Phenol with soap in a permanent, active union—and it's our secret yet.

Buchan's Toilet Soaps

contain 100% pure, odorless Phenol.

Phenol Absolut makes Buchan's superior to any other soaps in the world—not only pure, but antiseptic. Buchan's soaps do more than cleanse—they purify. That is true cleanliness.

Remember there's only one soap for you to use. "Almost pure" soaps are not safe enough. You must have absolutely pure soap—antiseptic soap. Ask for Buchan's, and you'll get it.

CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

A MILLION AMERICAN BOUNCING BABIES are kept growing with the delight of living because their mamas have learned to use CASCARETS Candy Cathartic. Neighborly neighbors tell each other of CASCARETS and the kind words said have created a sale of over A MILLION BOXES A MONTH. It is easy to protect infants against children's complaints, because all these perils have their beginning in stomach and bowels, and we have in CASCARETS a perfect medicine that will always keep the delicate machinery in a child's body clean, regular and in working order. Children like the little candy tablet, and are kept safe from all stomach, bowel, blood and skin diseases. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. Genuine tablet stamped CCC. Just A Reminder
FROM The City Collector

1905 TAXES

The Collecting Department of the City of Boston has extended all possible courtesy to delinquent tax payers for both poll and personal taxes for 1905.

Notice is hereby given that it is the intention to immediately take up each case and proceed to collect it according to law. Therefore, it is earnestly recommended that any individual who has not fulfilled his duty in regard to the payment of 1905 taxes should do so immediately or notify the City Collector why the matter has not been attended to.

1906 TAXES

The attention of the taxpayers of Boston—poll, personal and real estate—is called to the fact that the taxes of 1906 due October 1st, 1906, are subject to interest from November 1st, 1906.

The Collecting Department suggests that it would save trouble and expense to such tax payers as are delinquent if they would discharge their obligations at once, as according to law, a summons will be issued to each person whose tax remains unpaid at an additional cost for interest and expense of issuing the summons.

CITY LIGHT RECORD MAY BEAT BARRETT

Common Council President Has Difficult Contest for Re-election.

FOUGHT BY STRONG TICKET

Bitterly attacked upon his unfair attitude on the municipal lighting question when it was up in the Common Council early in the year and for his appointment of a stacked committee to conduct a fake investigation of the subject, William J. Barrett of Ward 18, president of the Common Council, is having the fight of his life for re-election to that body.

He is running on the ticket backed by Representative John J. Butler, the Boston Elevated railroad employe, who was defeated for Senator by W. W. Clarke, and the fact that Barrett has the backing of a man of Butler's corporation record is no other fact that militates against his chances.

Popular Ticket Against Him.

The Barrett-Butler council ticket is opposed by Daniel F. Cronin, George Keany and M. Frank O'Brien, three of the most popular men in the ward, whose nomination to-morrow is confidently predicted by their friends.

President Barrett's attitude on the municipal lighting question is one of the black spots in the history of the Common Council, for not only did he vote against the measure himself at every session, but when the question was being debated repeatedly refused to recognize the motion to the measure and raved against Councilmen Riley, Doherty and McCullough, the leaders in the fight for municipal ownership, at every point. So unfair has been his attitude on this and other questions that Councilman Doherty has announced himself as a candidate for the presidency next year.

If Barrett should by any chance be reelected to the council he would undoubtedly be refused a second term as president of the body, upsetting all precedent.

While the council stood forty-two to sixteen in favor of referring the municipal ownership question to the people, President Barrett, when he appointed the fake committee on investigation, named but one friend of municipal ownership on a committee of eight.

Expect Rebuke from Ward 18.

The worst feature of his appointments, however, was the naming of men on the so-called investigating committee who had deliberately broken their written pledges to vote in favor of the referendum municipal ownership of public lighting plants.

The voters of Ward 18 to-morrow will undoubtedly administer a severe rebuke for such conduct in one of their servants.

LITTLE GIRL SAVAGELY ATTACKED BY BULLDOG

Frances Heath's Face Badly Mangled by Infuriated Animal.

Suffering from nervous shock and from savage bites and lacerations of the nose and face which are expected to disfigure her for life, little Frances Heath, eight years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heath of No. 25 Sheafe street, Malden, is to-day expected by her physicians to recover, if the bulldog which yesterday attacked her did not have hydrophobia.

Frances was playing with some of her little neighbors in the back yard of her father's house. In the adjoining yard was the building, owned by A. F. Hunt. Something done by the children infuriated the animal, for with a growl it leaped the fence, jumped at Frances and knocked her down.

The beast mangled the child's face and tore her nose almost off. The dog then dashed at Martin Hunt, also eight years old, who bravely tried to save his little friend.

Neighbors rushed to the rescue, armed with guns, clubs and stones, and drove the dog away. Little Frances was hurried to the Malden Hospital. There the child's injuries were seen to be so serious that three physicians, Drs. Ryder, Gage and Plummer, attended her. They were two hours in dressing her injuries. The nose bones were fractured, both cheeks terribly lacerated, and the body was covered with bruises.

The dog was captured shortly after attacking the little girl and it is being held by the physicians to determine whether he is mad or not. The animal had before this been feared in the neighborhood, but the owners do not want to have him shot.

LITTLE GIRL ATTACKED BY DOG.

MANY CLASHES IN FIGHTS FOR CITY COUNCIL

The three hundred and ninety-six candidates for eighty-eight positions in the City Council got a strenuous night last night, each one striving to convince the voters that he was the especial one who would best conserve the interests of his constituents if they choose him a municipal statesman. Rallies and whirlwind tours were the order of the evening.

In the East Boston district "Tom" Giblin and "Dyke" Leary, two candidates for the Democratic nomination, had a clash when the anti-machine meeting attempted to address a rally called in Leary's interest at Orient Heights. The police had to be called in before Giblin would desist from interrupting his opponent. When Leary had finished Giblin got up in the auto and started a meeting in his own behalf.

Ovation for Collins.

Former Senator Thomas J. Collins toured the South Boston district and received an ovation wherever he went as he attacked one of his opponents, Eugene P. Brazzell, upon the latter's legislative record. At a meeting of 250 citizens of Ward 19 Michael H. Keany, Democratic candidate for the Common Council, was enthusiastically indorsed.

In the Garfland-Flanagan fight in Wards 9 and 10 Flanagan is out with a statement in which he points out the record by Garfland in which he vigorously assails the evening sessions and Garfland's eleventh hour attack upon his legislative record. Flanagan has also issued a last circular issued a week ago against Garfland.

"I sent my circular out in time for Mr. Garfland to answer it, and I trust that the voters of the district will not be misled by this characteristic method of campaigning of Senator Garfland."

Organized labor is with Flanagan, against Garfland, and this, with the aid of "Jim" Donovan, should insure Garfland's defeat. In Wards 22 and 23 organized labor is also taking an active part in Fred J. Kneeland's campaign for renomination and his record will undoubtedly receive the approval of the voters of the district to-morrow.

Noyes is Worried.

Councilman James R. Noyes of the aristocratic Back Bay section is worrying over his renomination, having a strong opponent in Henry Victor Lawrence, a young man of famous ancestry. Noyes as a member of the notorious municipal lighting committee of the City Council has a record of consistent inconsistency. To-night in Ward 10 George H. Moore, who is fighting the Innes machine, will hold a rally in the Hotel Brunswick which will be addressed by Isaac P. Hutchinson and Sherwin L. Andrews.

To-night, the eve of the primaries, will witness a whirlwind campaign throughout the city by the various candidates in one last effort to reach the ears of the voters before they go to the polls on the morrow.

SIX STUDENTS HELD FOR RIOT ARE SET FREE

Six Harvard students were in the first session of the Municipal Court before Chief Justice Bolster to-day on the charge of drunkenness, and it being their first appearance on that complaint they were "discharged without arraignment."

They are the students who are accused of riotous conduct in the Hotel Lexington last night. Hotel Manager Charles T. Wilson and Captain of Waiters Jarrett appeared against them.

"I am not going to stand for any more rough house in my hotel," said Mr. Wilson to a BOSTON AMERICAN. "After this I'll prosecute every student who takes a disturbance."

The students who appeared in court were Robert C. Carleton, Fred R. Richardson, Henry Williams, Alexander G. Lynch, son of Judge Robert Grant of the Suffolk County Probate Court; Stanley T. Stuckpole and Murray A. Coree.

Against Williams there is a charge of sending payment of a hotel bill of $10.40. This was the amount of the checks which were presented for drinks served at the Lexington to him and other students. It is understood that the students claimed that the bill was too high. The case of Williams on this charge went over until to-morrow.

Blackened Eyes in Crowd.

While these court proceedings were going on the corridors were filled with Harvard students. Many of them looked as if they had been in a fight. Some had blackened eyes and disfigured noses.

"The trouble grew out of a free-for-all fight in the Lexington late last night. A party of students made themselves obnoxious by singing and talking loudly and annoying other guests in the dining room. Finally there was a struggle with the waiters. The police then took a hand.

HARVARD 'GOLD COASTERS' LOSE

The Mt. Auburn street students, who are known at Harvard as the "Gold Coasters," because they can get money from home when they feel like it, failed to carry off the junior elections yesterday, as they hoped, as was had done in the past.

The newly elected president, H. M. Gilmore, of Dorchester, Pa., a substitute guard on the varsity eleven, was the candidate of most of merely moderate means. C. Wiggins, who ran in second, and who lost by only four votes, is of the same set. G. Glass was chosen vice-president. He was in the crew that rowed last year.

The "Gold Coast" crowd elected their candidate for secretary-treasurer, H. V. Ambrose, who also played on the varsity basket ball team and No. 7 in the crew.

GIVE PURSE TO PASTOR.

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 14.—Rev. William H. Rider celebrated his sixtieth birthday yesterday and was given a purse by his parishioners.

YANKEE FOILS 5 ASSASSINS

KIEL, Germany, Nov. 14.—A mysterious attempt was made early to-day to assassinate Captain Backman, formerly of New York, who is now an officer in the Turkish navy. Captain Backman came here to command the new Turkish warship Assanitewsik. While returning home from a banquet he was attacked by five men with daggers. The captain is an expert boxer, and he was able to fight off his assailants until help arrived, sustaining only slight wounds.

It is believed the assassins were employed by the Young Turks party, which purposes to kill the American for his part in representing the Sultan's navy.

WEAD TALKS ON REAL ESTATE

The property owner who cheapens a business neighborhood by admitting an undesirable tenant, Leslie C. Wead told an audience at the Y. M. C. A. course on real estate last night, strikes a blow at all his neighbors, but eventually suffers with them. "By seeking better tenants," said Mr. Wead, "an owner considers the stability of the business, its character, the financial stability of the tenant, the wear and tear on the building and the effect on the occupancy on the cost of insurance."

WAGE EARNERS TO HONOR CANDIDATE

The Wage Earners' Clubs of South Boston will give J. Frank O'Hare, candidate for Alderman, a reception at the rooms of the Ward 14 Wage Earners' Club, Emerson street, to-night.

MAYOR TO BE A. O. H. GUEST

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who, after attending the opening of the Fair of the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, New York, last night, making an address and later, with Mrs. Fitzgerald, being entertained at a luncheon given in their honor by Sir Thomas Lipton at the Waldorf Astoria, left New York for Boston to-day, to be present to-night at the Matthew Cunnings dinner at the Hotel Somerset.

Mayor and Mrs. Fitzgerald went over to New York Monday morning, and while in that city were the guests of Sir Thomas Lipton. At the opening of the church fair, Sir Thomas and Congressman Bourke Cochran also delivered short addresses.

Tricked by Dyspepsia

The Doctor Couldn't Tell Where the Trouble Lay.

"For the past seven years I have been a victim of dyspepsia and chronic constipation and have consulted the most noted specialists to be found on diseases of this character. Some, however, seemed to locate the difficulty or give relief. In addition to this medical treatment, I have resorted to the use of many remedies and have given them faithful trial, but all to no purpose.

Upon the recommendation of a close friend, I purchased a 50c package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and in less than five days noticed that I was receiving more benefit than from any remedy I had used before. I continued to use the tablets after each meal for one month, and by that time my stomach was in a healthy condition capable of digesting anything which my increasing appetite demanded.

I have not experienced any return of my former trouble, though three months have elapsed since taking your remedy."

We wish that you could see with your own eyes the countless other bona-fide signed letters from grateful men and women all over the land who had suffered years of agony with dyspepsia, tried every known remedy and consulted eminent specialists without result, until they gave Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial. Like the doctor above, they couldn't locate the seat of the trouble.

Dyspepsia is a disease which has long baffled physicians. So difficult of location is the disorder that it seems next to miraculous. There is only one way to treat dyspepsia—to supply the elements which nature has ordained to perform this function and to cause them to enter the digestive organs, supplying the fluids which lack. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets alone fill these requirements, as is shown by the fact that 40,000 physicians in the United States and Canada unite in recommending them to their patients for stomach disorders.

We do not claim or expect Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to cure anything but disordered conditions of the stomach and other digestive organs, but this they never fail to do. They work upon the inner lining of the stomach and intestines, stimulate the gastric glands and aid in the secretion of juices necessary to digestion.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. One box will frequently effect a perfect cure. If in doubt and wish more adequate proof send us your name and address and we will gladly mail you a sample package free. F. A. Stuart Co., 61 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Music in Fifth Floor Restaurant

HENRY SIEGEL CO

Siegel Studio on 7th Floor

THIS is Boston's principal store, because of easily demonstrated reasons; it is one of the impressive points of interest for all visitors; it is a store whose architectural construction embodies every advanced idea known to modern building, but the building itself is but the shell that houses a store of vast resources, conducted for the satisfaction, safety and convenience of its customers. By buying direct and in enormous quantities we eliminate all intermediate costs, an advantage that enables us to quote at regular prices what other stores announce as special.

The Henry Siegel store provides numerous accommodations and conveniences that bring it immediate recognition as the down-town shopping center—a store that is achieving enduring success for other than pecuniary reasons—if you know this store only from its bargain side, you're only partially informed as to its surpassing facilities—here is store news calculated to stimulate a speedy acquaintance with the Henry Siegel Co. store.

Nearly Half a Carload of Rubber Goods in This Second Annual Sale

The Entire stock of Factory Checked Stock and Samples from the Largest Manufacturer Of high-grade Hot Water Bottles, Syringes and Rubber Sundries in the world. A year ago we held a duplicate of this sale. Our department was crowded; mail orders were enormous. Our prices are in every instance less than half. Owing to the enormous number of complaints that the factory received last year from the different Boston druggists we must refrain from using the name in this advertisement.

While these goods are technically classified as "seconds," the wearing qualities are positively unaffected, and we guarantee and will make exchanges freely on all regular goods.

The "seconds" in this case are goods that bear slight blemishes; for instance, a pair of rubber gloves may have a little discoloration at the seam, or the metal work of a water bottle may have a fleck or two of rust. No "hurts" at all.

ARMED NEGRO DESPERADO ELUDES PURSUERS; WILL KILL IF TRAPPED

Believe That Jailbird Has Waylaid Hunter and Taken His Gun

In Desperate Need of Food, Hunted Man Robs Hen Houses and Larders.

where he had been hunting rabbits, was met by a negro of desperate appearance. The man spoke to the lad and knocked him down. As the young hunter lay stunned on the ground the man took the rifle and ammunition and fled into the woods.

Francis is now supposed to be wounded by a rifle bullet which Wilfred Smith of Warren shot at him yesterday. Francis tried to force Smith's grocery store about 5 a. m. Smith saw him and fired a shot at him. Francis then continued his course to Francis is now said to be armed with a revolver and two knives. There is a reward that he overtook a hunter in the woods, overpowered him and took away his arms.

The home of Francis's mother in Rockland is also being shadowed by the police.

Has Secured Clothes.

In some mysterious manner Francis was supplied with clothes other than those he wore while in the jail. Warden Norton has secured evidence which points to some one having concealed clothing and food in a barn not far from the jail, which Francis is believed to have picked up in the course of his flight.

After escaping from the dragnet thrown out by the searchers at Ragged Mountain were right upon the heels of the escaped prisoner, and the prospect of speedy capture began to grow brighter.

When seen by Farnsworth, Francis was dressed in a long, shabby coat, and had blood trousers. Francis had set his course due north and was traveling over the road at a fair rate of speed. From the direction in which he was going it is believed that the negro is trying to get to the shores of the Penobscot, to reach the lumber camps on the water front.

Francis's movements since his escape and a fusillade of bullets has been established. First he stole a horse and wagon, then he broke into Smith's store in Warren in his hunt for a gun.

Next he robbed the hen roost of a farmer near by the town of Warren, and some of the other farmers have missed provisions from their cellars, thefts for which they hold the fleeing criminal responsible.

Now it is feared he will break some of the country stores, or which there are many, and secure firearms and ammunition. If successful, he will shoot and shoot to kill, thus increasing many fold the danger to those who are trailing him.

Escapes, After Running Fire, to Vanderbilt's Biltmore Estate.

TROUBLE WAS OVER A TIP

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 14.—Will Harris, a negro desperado, on whose head a large reward had been posted for many months, early to-day shot and killed two policemen, wounded a police captain, shot and killed a negro restaurant keeper, and fatally wounded another negro.

The man escaped to the woods of George W. Vanderbilt's Biltmore estate, and from there is now being tracked by posses of armed men and bloodhounds.

Harris, who came here from Charlotte, N. C., had taken refuge in a house in Valley street, until he went on the warpath after midnight. First he fired his rifle into two houses, as he made his way to South Main street.

At Eagle street he saw Ben Allison, the negro restaurant keeper, fleeing for safety, and he shot him in the back, killing him instantly. John Nell, another negro, came out of a building to see what the shooting was about, and the desperado shot him in the side, probably mortally wounding him.

Police Captain Page and Policemen Charles Blackstock and William Bailey were sent from headquarters on a riot call to round up the negro.

Captain Page, who was leading his men, met the negro coming down Main street, firing into the windows of buildings and taking a shot at any person he happened to see on the street.

When he saw Captain Page he fired his rifle and fired, Captain Page dropped with a broken arm, the outlaw's bullet having fractured a bone. With the officer's arm disabled he dropped his revolver, and was forced to retreat. Blackstock and Bailey came to the rescue of their captain, taking up a position to cover his retreat back of a building.

Just as Blackstock was aiming his revolver at the negro, twenty yards away, the desperado fired and Blackstock dropped dead with a bullet through his heart. Bailey fired twice at the negro, missing him, and the negro sent a rifle ball crashing through Bailey's head dropping him dead on top of his comrade's body.

A general riot alarm was sounded throughout the city and a call was made on the militia. Posses were quickly formed. Harris, reloading his rifle from pockets filled with cartridges, held off all who appeared on Main street, and backed out of town toward the Biltmore estate.

BROKE LIGHTING PLEDGE NOW ASKS RENOMINATIO

Voters of Ward 14 Have Chance To-morrow to Pass Judgment on Patrick D. McGrath.

Voters of Ward 14 to-morrow will be confronted with the name of Patrick D. McGrath as a candidate for renomination to the Common Council. Mr. McGrath is one of the many candidates who, previous to the election last year, made a written pledge to the Municipal Ownership League that if he were elected he would advocate and vote for a municipal lighting plant.

The fact that he had made such a pledge was heralded throughout his ward and he was elected. But no sooner had he been elected and the opportunity afforded him, than he VOTED AGAINST a municipal lighting plant.

This is the pledge that was sent to him and others by Professor Frank Parsons, Mr. [illegible] chairman of the Municipal Ownership League:

Answered in Affirmative.

Dear Sir—If you are nominated and elected to the City Council will you advocate and vote for the passage this coming year of the resolution or order providing for one or more municipal gas and electric lighting plants in Boston, so that the question may be submitted to the people for final decision at the polls? The measure was passed last January by 50 to 7 in the Council and 9 to 3 in the Board of Aldermen. If passed again this year it goes to the voters at the polls. If not passed this coming year the work already done will be lost, as the law requires that the measure shall be passed in two consecutive years before it can go to the people.

The question amounts simply to this: Are you willing to allow the matter to go to the voters and let them decide it?

Silence after a reasonable time for reply will be deemed equivalent to a negative answer. Please mail reply in enclosed envelope.

This is the pledge that [illegible]

Answer Yes

Ward 14.

Three Others Did the Same.

Three other men are candidates for the Council who gave the Municipal Ownership League to understand that if they were elected they would vote for a municipal lighting plant. Here are their names:

Ward 1—Edward C. E. Bagley.
Ward 22—Howard E. Savage.
Ward 24—William R. Wright.

All of these men voted against a municipal lighting plant as soon as they had the chance.

FEDERAL JUDGE ANNULS PAPERS OF CITIZENSHIP

Charging that fraudulent naturalization papers had been possessed to the immigration authorities, Judge Dodge, in the Federal Court to-day, annulled the naturalization papers of Charles Manning of St. Louis. He arrived on the Saxonia last Thursday.

This was the first instance in Boston court history, and the first time, as far as the Boston Immigration authorities can recall, in this country where naturalization papers have been annulled.

Upon arrival, Manning presented naturalization papers and claimed to be a citizen of the United States. Investigation showed that he arrived in this country for the first time on the Commonwealth on November 25, 1901, and naturalization papers had been granted by the St. Louis District Court on October 8, 1902.

As Manning had not been a native of the United States for five years, the papers were fraudulent. The annulment was made under the new act passed by the last Congress which gives my court having jurisdiction in naturalization papers the authority to annul them.

ROOSEVELT TO LEAD PROBE OF FRISCO GRAFT

President Roosevelt is said to be the moving spirit in the new investigation of bribe granting alleged in regard to funds sent from all over the country for the relief of Frisco fire and earthquake sufferers, according to special dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day from San Francisco. It is said that a big amount has disappeared. It was made up of sums sent from almost every State in the Union, and is said to have never reached the relief committee. How much money was "grafted" is unknown. There is nothing to indicate that any of the Massachusetts relief money was misapplied. In Massachusetts, $923,000 was raised, and out of this sum, $600,000 already has been expended. The balance of Massachusetts money on hand is $323,000.

It is said that large amounts were mailed to the care of Mayor Schmitz. Detective William Burns, F. J. Heney and about 100 Government agents are making an investigation, and President Roosevelt says no guilty man will be permitted to escape.

ANDOVER BOY FREE OF SHOOTING BLAME

LAWRENCE, Nov. 14.—Judge Mahoney, convinced that the shooting of John Tracy, the Phillips Academy student, by his chum, Charles Edward Riggs, was accidental, this forenoon discharged Riggs from custody.

ITALIAN BOOTBLACKS TO ORGANIZE UNION

A meeting to organize the Italian bootblacks of this city into a labor union will be held to-night in Italian Labor Hall, No. 114 North street.

Dominick D'Alessandro, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor for Italians, will speak.

CHARGE BRIBERY IN BLOCK ISLAND VOTE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 14.—The Block Island election may be thrown out by the courts as a result of the charge made by the anti-Champlin forces that one of their supervisors was offered $500 to mark the ballots of illiterate voters for the Champlin ticket.

SCORE WOMEN IN FIGHT FOR LOVE OF A MAN

Mrs. Hattie A. Waters, flash line dressmaker, and Mrs. Alice F. Elder, Crescent Beach hotel keeper, sat glaring at each other in the Superior Court to-day while they heard themselves being alternately lauded and denounced. Mrs. Waters cried part of the time, and once left the court room for a time.

It was the summing up of the badly tangled auto-divorce court suit in which the dressmaker wants Elder from the hotel keeper for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

In appeals as James E. Waters, the husband in dispute, declared with much show of earnestness on the witness stand that he was imperious to the charms of women-kind, that, in fact, he "loved nobody," counsel for the defendant argued that Waters had no effection to alienate, and therefore, there was no ground for damages.

Denies Charge of Enticing.

Mrs. Elder's lawyer said that he would pass by as unworthy of notice those counts in the indictment which charged "harboring and secreting," and confine his argument to those which alleged "enticing, procuring and persuading" Mr. Waters away from his wife.

"Mrs. Elder never enticed, procured or persuaded Waters to become one of her lodgers at the Rippling Wave Hotel," argued counsel. "It was Mrs. Waters who hired the rooms. While Mr. and Mrs. Waters were living at the Rippling Wave Mrs. Waters never alleged kissing or hugging, she never alleged excessive drinking, she never once raised her voice in protest against the conduct of her husband and Mrs. Elder.

After throwing a few oratorical bouquets at his client, lauding her up as a woman of scrupulous integrity in business as well as private life, Mrs. Elder's lawyer started in to "knock" the plaintiff with vigor and evident relish. Here's a sample:

"When she was living in Newcastle Court apart from her husband, and a Harvard professor was paying her attentions, she had the entire cellar out to let her husband go to her apartments if he could, as he was a dog."

Calls Hotel a "Barroom."

Plaintiff's lawyer was just as enthusiastically personal when his turn came to address the court. He characterized the Rippling Wave as "a kitchen barroom," and backed up his statement by court records which proved that its proprietor had been fined $100 and sentenced twice to jail for the illegal sale of liquor.

"This woman," said counsel, pointing his finger at Mrs. Elder, "she smiled sweetly in return. This woman wanted to increase her business. She hired this man Waters away from his wife and got him to play the piano at the Rippling Wave in order to entice unfortunate drinking men to her place.

"She says she never loved him—that their relations were merely those of landlady and lodger. But she kissed him and hugged him and fooled him money."

To the manifest disappointment of plaintiff and defendant, both of whom had looked for a quick decision, Judge Sanderson announced that he would take the case under advisement.

Mrs. Elder left court with Mr. Waters. They laughed. Looking crushed and dejected, Mrs. Waters walked away alone.

WHO SHALL CONTROL?

THE

CORPORATIONS OR THE PEOPLE?

A quiet and determined movement is on foot by certain vested interests to control the Board of Aldermen of next year and strong statements and appeals are necessary in order to defeat their dastardly purpose.

The interests of South Boston demand the defeat of Baldwin and Collins. They are Corporation men.

The record established by Eugene T. Brazzell of Ward 13 stamps him as an absolutely honest man and a capable, earnest servant of the people. He has always voted right.

A Remedy for Everyday Ills

For Over Fifty Years

Beecham's Pills have unfailingly carried the message of health and good cheer to the homes of the people. They are the best family medicine ever compounded. Wherever health is valued, Beecham's Pills are held in the highest esteem by men and women. Compounded from purely vegetable ingredients, these pills possess properties which make them invaluable to the sailor, the soldier, the man of business and the captain of industry. Women find Beecham's Pills an aid to beauty, a harbinger of health and of special assistance in ailments that are peculiarly feminine.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

have never been exploited by sensational advertising, yet their sales have steadily increased in every quarter of the globe. Personal letters endorsing Beecham's Pills are received by the thousands, but it is never necessary to publish them. The pills recommend themselves.

For the everyday ills of life, there is no other remedy so prompt, so safe, so thorough, so highly prized by old and young, as Beecham's Pills. As a stomach corrective they have no superior; for the liver, kidneys and bowels they accomplish everything for which they are recommended. Indigestion, biliousness, sick headache, constipation and their attendant ills cannot exist when Beecham's Pills are used as directed. They regulate, tone and strengthen all the bodily functions—not generally, but always. That Beecham's Pills keep faith with the people is amply attested by the enormous

LABOR MEN FIGHT TRUST BIENNIAL ELECTION PLAN

Leaders of Workingmen and Publicists Denounce Scheme for Long Terms of Office.

THE movement for biennial elections of State officials in Massachusetts, inaugurated in the cause of "the interests," is meeting with the opposition of labor and of leading economic thinkers on the ground that it will put the government still further out of touch with the people and further from their control. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Robert Treat Paine, Jr., and professor Frank Parsons three of the most prominent students of government and political economy in Massachusetts, have given their reasons for opposing biennial elections to the BOSTON AMERICAN, as have a number of well-known labor leaders of the State.

THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON.

Thomas Wentworth Higginson said:

"I am opposed to any change in our present form of elections. I think it would be very unwise to elect a Governor for two years and to have the Legislature sit only once in that period of time. The reasons are evident.

"In the first place, the Legislature of this State does more work than those of the States where biennial elections are in force. The Legislature of Massachusetts has plenty of business to keep it very busy all the time. If the Legislature sat only once in two years, the volume of business would increase so much that matters would be greatly complicated."

ROBERT TREAT PAINE, JR.

Robert Treat Paine, Jr., said:

"The movement for biennial elections may very possibly promise certain advantages through less frequent elections and therefore a certain economy in running the political machines and in other ways.

"The people in 1888 passed upon the proposition and defeated it by 3 to 2 in a very large vote. I have no objection, though I believe their judgment would be the same, and rightly so. I consider this movement would probably be penny wise and pound foolish. The fundamental object is to bring the government closer to the people, to make it more responsive to the needs of the community and its desires. We need not a little more electoral peace or political calm, but legislative measures of progress."

PROFESSOR FRANK PARSONS.

Professor Parsons said:

"Every increase in the lenght of the official term increases the motive and necessity for greater care in the nomination and election of officials. Under this proposed plan, when mistakes are made, in the absence of popular recall, they become irrevocable errors, and the longer the term of office the more disastrous is the result. The long term also tends to fasten on the people the power of bosses and machines wherever these germs of modern politics exist.

"On the whole, where government is pure and efficient and under the thorough control of the people, the long term might be adopted with advantage, but where the government is corrupt or in the hands of a political ring, it would be a mistaken policy to increase the term of office and so diminish the opportunity for reform and help to perpetuate the power of the machines.

"In the case of a legislative biennial session, it seems that it would produce a congestion of legislative business that would make it practically impossible for the legislators of a great State to give proper attention to the measures upon which they would be called to act. Even as it is, our legislators find it impossible to get a thorough understanding of all the important bills which come up before them, and if they spent at the State House only half of the time they now devote to public business the difficulty would be doubled."

EDWARD COHEN.

Edward Cohen, president of the Massachusetts State Branch, American Federation of Labor, said:

"Labor believes in voting as often as it possibly can, so as to rid the Commonwealth of bad legislators. We are not looking at this question from the point of expense to the people. We are looking at it from the standpoint of labor—that if a legislator commits an error during his term of office we do not want to reelect him, but want to replace him with a man who will be more favorable to labor legislation.

"Take this year, for instance, in the defeat of so many of the Senators who voted against the overtime bill. In what position would we have been if we had biennial instead of annual elections? We would not have been able probably to muster up so much strength."

HENRY STERLING.

Henry Sterling, secretary of the Boston Typographical Union, said:

"This is the old familiar scheme of a select few who do not believe in government by the people, and who desire to remove the government as far from the control of the people as possible."

HENRY ABRAHAMS.

Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, said:

"I am opposed to biennials because frequent elections educate the people. They also give the citizens an opportunity to relegate to the rear unfaithful public servants. I am opposed to biennials because this is a republic and not a monarchy, because annual elections are democratic, and because the common people want them."

ARTHUR M. WATSON.

Arthur M. Watson, secretary of the Carpenters' District Council of Boston and vicinity, said:

"With nominations more directly in the hands of the voters and taken from the party machine, with the initiative and referendum in operation, possibly longer terms might not work a hardship on the people of the State, but the rights of its citizens, to my mind, largely depend in this era of corporation rule, upon the custom of annually hearing from representatives, Senators and Governors and other elected officers the manner in which they kept their trust."

NEEDHAM WILL PUSH DEMANDS ON RAILROAD

Another Mass Meeting Called for To-night to Work for Better Service to Boston.

NEEDHAM, Nov. 14.—Supplementary to a mass meeting held last night, which fixated the capacity of the Town Hall, another citizens' meeting will be held at the same place to-night to renew the protests of last night's meeting against the existing accommodations between Needham and Boston over the new Needham-West Roxbury branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

At to-night's meeting a committee will be appointed to co-operate with the following committee of five appointed at last night's meeting: Otis E. Dunham, John F. Moore, Albert H. Bagloe, William P. Bailey and Harry Woodward. The committee will wait upon the officials of the road immediately and request that something be done at once to remedy the present unsatisfactory conditions of affairs.

The chief complaint is about the change of cars necessary at Needham Junction in going between Needham and Highlandville and Boston. The committee was also instructed to endeavor to secure a reduction in fare on commutation tickets between Needham and Boston. The present cost of a twenty-five trip ticket is $4, which is more than the citizens were obliged to pay when they traveled by way of Newton Highlands to Boston. They want a twenty-five trip ticket for $3.

The change of cars at Needham Junction seemed to be the chief objection at last night's meeting and concerning this Charles Morton, H. Walker, of the Board of Library Trustees, said:

"They rallied me and branded me as a 'Jonah.' Needham has been side-tracked and is put back twenty-five years."

DR. PERIN HAS $30,000 MORE

Dr. George L. Perin, president of the Franklin Square House, to-day announced that $30,000 had been subscribed toward the second $100,000 which he is raising for the payment of the debt of the property. Joseph E. Merrill of Newton, has just contributed $5,000 to be added to a single subscription of $25,000 received a few days ago. Dr. Perin, two years ago, raised $100,000 by subscription and he hopes to raise $100,000 more before March 1 next.

GARTLAND IS DENOUNCED TO WAGE-EARNERS

Senator's Record Given as Reason Why He Should Fail of Aldermanic Nomination.

Senator John J. Gartland was denounced for his consistency in subserving the corporate interests at a large mass meeting of wage earners of Ward 9 last night in the old Franklin schoolhouse. The voters were called upon to defeat Mr. Gartland for nomination for the Board of Aldermen at the caucuses to-morrow.

Several feeble attempts were made to interrupt the meeting, but the disturbers were immediately suppressed. Among the speakers were President Edward Cohen of the State branch, A. F. of L.; Peter Mahon, Chas. M. Hubbell of the Central Labor Union, Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Central Labor Union, Business Agent John F. Kennedy of Sheet Metal Workers' Local No. 17 and Thomas M. Nolan of Typographical Union No. 13.

Recounted Gartland's Record.

Mr. Cohen recounted Gartland's legislative record for the past nine years, which abounded in absenteeism and votes against labor measures. He pointed out that Gartland, during the past year, was away on eighteen rollcalls, and by being absent on March 22 helped kill the overtime bill.

Mr. Cohen said:

"It is time for you to relegate to the rear such men who have no other interests but the interests of the corporations and it is time we thought of our neighbors' interests all over the State instead of this small locality by electing such a man as Gartland. Here you have an opportunity. Grasp it while you can. And on next Thursday is to tell John J. Gartland that you are tired of ... services, and he defies to work, in work for those whose interests he has served in the halls of legislation in nine years.

"Let him wear a motorman's or conductor's cap of the Boston Elevated Railway as he is such a friend of theirs. See how he likes $1.75 a day and all the kicks and abuses of the Boston Elevated.

"In the year 1906 John J. Gartland left the corporate interests, and he entered into the business of an undertaker. John J. Gartland! One of the men most responsible for the murder and funeral of our lives Bill. The men from this city figure here, very much in the defeat of this bill. Such men as Senator Lane voted against this bill. Such men as John J. Gartland didn't have nerve enough to vote against it as did Senator Lane. Senator Lane was a man and expressed his opinion. John J. Gartland dodged the issue, and didn't dare to come out like the man you thought he was.

Gartland Dodged Vote.

"John J. Gartland on Thursday, when the bill came ... for engrossment, was in the Senate chamber, and five minutes before the vote was taken John J. Gartland was in his seat in the Senate chamber. While the bill was being read John J. Gartland left the Senate chamber and went to the cafe. The bill would have passed John J. Gartland was there to vote, and the friends of the bill and the friends of John J. Gartland repeatedly sent down for him to come up and vote for the bill. But John said: 'Tell them I am not here,' and John was not there. And the result was that no overtime bill passed on that day without John.

"The next day the bill came up for consideration, and John unfortunately was in Northampton. John gives this as an excuse. John is on the Committee on Counties, and at that particular time the committee was to go to Northampton. John had been on that committee a long time but never attended a meeting of that committee before, but at this particular time John desired to go to Northampton. Why? Because the next day the bill came up for consideration, and John was absent in Northampton. The first time John had been in Northampton. John went to work for another boss."

ECHO OF CASSIE CHADWICK IN BOSTON COURT

Counsel for H. B. Newton, Her Brookline Victim, Announces Compromise on Note.

An echo of the notorious Cassie L. Chadwick, whose "frenzied finance" transactions caused a sensation two years ago, was heard to-day in the United States Circuit Court here, when counsel for Herbert H. Newton, the wealthy resident of Brookline who was one of her victims, announced that a compromise had been effected with the receiver of the Citizens' National Bank of Oberlin, O., whereby Newton will pay $4,100 in settlement of his note for $10,000, one of several obtained by Mrs. Chadwick through fraudulent representations and discounted at the Oberlin bank. Settlement of the other notes has not yet been made.

Newton had refused to pay the full amount of the note on the ground that there had been collusion between the bank officials and Mrs. Chadwick. She had indeed him, as asserted, to make the note through false representations, including the claim that Andrew Carnegie, the millionaire steel king, was one of her backers.

A note for $500,000 was exhibited by her, purporting to be signed by Carnegie. A deposition was put in to-day by Samuel W. Emery, Newton's counsel, sieved by Carnegie, repudiating any and all representations made by Mrs. Chadwick, and denying any acquaintance whatever with her.

He promptly acted President Roosevelt, his former colonel, that Theodore Roosevelt Bell had reported for duty. When General Bell got home to look over the new arrival he was thunderstruck to find that the baby was a girl.

NEARY PUT TO SLEEP IN THE SECOND ROUND

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—Charley Neary, the invincible Dutchman, the boy with the cast-iron jaw and the whalebone body, the 10 to 6 favorite and the conqueror of Aurelio Herrera, was knocked out in the second round of his fight with George Memsic, Tommy Burns's changeling. The worst of it was that Neary was knocked out before he had begun to fight. He made the mistake of feinting the first round away in order to feel his man out. He used his week lead and never relied on his thunderbolt right once during the first round.

Students Fear Condition of the Team

HARVARD GOING STALE?

Considerable fear is being expressed by the undergraduate body at Cambridge as regards the condition of the varsity men, many of whom, it is believed, are overtrained at the present time. For the past two weeks until last Friday the practice had been long and hard in preparation to meet the Carlisle Indians, Saturday was the turning point. After the game several of the hardest workers on the team apparently wilted and pleaded for a rest. Coupled with the work for the entire squad has been exceedingly light. Many believe that Harvard put up the game of her season against the Indians and are beginning to look with fear on the approach of the Hanoverians on Saturday.

Yesterday the work in the Stadium was of the lightest order. Miller, who was injured in the West Point game, dislocated his shoulder during the punting practice, and will be out of the game for the rest of the year. Burnham, who was also injured at West Point, has been advised by his physician not to enter the arena again this year. This keeps two good men on the side lines. Several minor injuries to the Harvard eleven at West Point now recall the fact that the soldiers didn't play the comfortable game they usually indulge against them, according to reports of the Princeton game last Saturday, where it was stated that the Tigers were too rough.

Kerrbarg was out of the game yesterday and is suffering from a cold.

Captain Foster Out.

Captain Foster was with the varsity for the greater part of the time it was through signals, and will probably get into the scrimmage this afternoon.

Much time was spent on the forward pass and the onside kick during the preliminary work, and Hall, Newhall and Lincoln all worked on drop kicking. An effort will be made to develop a drop kicker for the Yale game, and with Starr, Newhall and Lincoln all in the first combination, Coach Reid should get one into shape for the Yale game.

In the preliminary work Coach Reid and Burr punted, all of the men being given a drill in handling the punts and blocking off men in going down the field. Harvard has realized the importance of the kicking game, and from now on will spend considerable time on it.

Parker and Wendell both took a try at kicking goals during the early part of the afternoon's work.

Dartmouth's Hard Practice.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 14.—Yesterday's practice consisted of good, hard scrimmages. All the new plays known to the various coaches were tried out, with the result of a tired squad when work was over. Owing to the slippery field quite a few injuries occurred, but not of a serious nature. At the present time it looks as if the team would give a good account of itself Saturday. The student body are rightbehind their team and will be on the hookout for all of that 3 to 1 Harvard money. The team will leave for Boston at 2 p. m. Thursday and will probably stop at the Copley Square Hotel.

Rooms Will Be a Factor.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 14.—The Yale coaches and team now have the needed inspiration for supreme effort, caused by the playing of Roome, and this was emphasized yesterday when the varsity went in and walloped the life out of the scrubs, getting three touchdowns, one of which was made possible by a seventy-yard run of Ted Jones.

Roome did not quit after the twenty minutes of work handed out to the varsity squad, but played on much longer with the second team against the third, and he went fast all the time, giving the best hope that he will be able to play in the Princeton contest, but he is still in no such shape that he will be a big factor in bringing victory to Yale.

Hogan, Bull and others of the old Yale guard were on hand to give the men fresh over to-day, and they seemed to feel that the eleven was at last showing some returning to form. None of the regulars back field except Roome was in the line-up to-day and Hollenberger and Alcott of the line were given a day off.

Tigers in Ragged Practice.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 14.—Scrimmages are now things of the past for the Tigers. No more rough work for these boys until Saturday, and then plenty of it. Yesterday afternoon the varsity lined up against the scrub in a twenty-minute setto. The first string tallied the touchdowns after strenuous work.

The second score came harder than the first. From right end on the scrub O'Brien broke into every play, breaking tackles on end and catching forward passes intended for other hands than his. The absence of the regular backfield made it impossible to get an exact idea of how the Tigers are rushing out. The patched up varsity did fairly well, but there was ragedness in the play throughout.

DUFRESNE BEAT HALSEY.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 14.—Kid Dufresne of Lewiston, Me., defeated Tommy Haley of New York in the seventh round of a boxing contest at the Shamrock Club last night. It was practically all Dufresne except in the first round, when Haley made a good showing, after which he went to pieces.

KELLEY AND BARRY DRAW

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Nov. 14.—At the end of the tenth round of the "go" between Hugo Kelley of Chicago and Dave Barry of San Francisco under the auspices of the Kalamazoo Athletic Club here last night, Referee Siler declared the fight a draw. The fighting was fierce the greater part of the ten rounds.

Barry's left eye was cut early in the second round, he claims by Kelley butting, though Siler says he did not see it. Blood flowed freely the greater part of the fight, interfering with Barry's vision and effectiveness at times. Siler cautioned Kelley several times. The decision was popular, as, although Kelley counted more blows, Barry led in aggressiveness and his blows generally were more effective.

BIGGEST TERRIER SHOW EVER HELD IN THE WORLD

Boston terriers from all over the country gathered at Mechanics building this morning for the annual show of the Boston Terrier Club, of the existence of which locality slow ever held in this country, the entries numbering more than 500. The show is on for four days, closing on Saturday night, when the last special will be awarded.

Other arrangements were similar to those of last year, the same space in Mechanics building being occupied, but there were more benches to accommodate the large entry list. The ring was larger, too, and there were more seats for those who cared to watch the judging.

Alexander Goode, Dwight Baldwin and Henry Riley were the men selected to hand out the ribbons. Three judges in a ring was something of a novelty, and the spectators wondered how the scheme would pan out.

From early in the morning until long past 10 o'clock, when the doors were opened and the show was supposed to be in full swing, crowds arrived in pairs and in teams. The superintendent had his hands full answering the questions of the curious, and the crush at the entrance was something terrific.

However, things were gradually straightened out and the dog lovers began to come into the building and inspect the fine specimens that were benched. Several crafty fanciers hurried from bench to bench hoping to pick up a "world beater" before his owner realized his worth, and early in the day there were scores of persons sitting up the dogs with a view to buy later in the week. The Boston terrier show is one of the best in the country for the sale of dogs.

Nearly all the best dogs of recent years were to be seen, but the greatest interest centred in the puppies. It was from the ranks of the youngsters that the future champions were to come.

SOX GOING TO PLAY IN CUBA

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—It is not going to be very dull for the world's champion White Sox this winter, after all. Not only George Davis and "Jiggs" Donahue can help it.

Davis has the Cuban junket idea. Today Donahue received word from Davis that the trip is almost sure to be a go and asking that the first baseman and his wife prepare to sail from New York November 24 for a six-weeks' trip.

The best six of the boys are ready to go. Nick Altrock and Frank Owen will pitch, Frank Roth will catch, Donahue will play first base, Davis shortstop and Eddie Hahn right field. O'Leary and Schaefer of the Detroit team will play third and second base, respectively. The other outfielders will be selected soon.

BILLIARD ENTRIES IN.

The entries for the billiard championship of America between the players who just will be held in New York within a short time, are as follows:

Edward McLaughlin of New York; Thomas J. Gallagher of New York; Harry Cline of Philadelphia; Alexander Taylor of Chicago; Joseph Capron of Chicago; Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis; Albert G. Cutler of Boston.

CHARLESTOWN A. C. BOXING.

The entries for the swell amateur boxing show of the Charlestown A. C. will close Saturday, November 17, with Austin P. Kavenev, Union and Lawrence streets, Charlestown.

So many men never think seriously about getting well until they become physical wrecks; allow the simplest diseases to make inroads on their health.

Every day an ailing man puts off seeing a good, reliable specialist he courts future trouble.

Almost every weak man can get back his health—can become perfectly strong—can become a real man by healthy means.

Generally the first symptoms of disease are not serious, but they are surely symptoms that, if neglected, lead to serious results.

Almost every man who has devoted his entire life to the study and cure of some disease.

Pabst for Temperance

On account of its low percentage of alcohol (only 3½ per cent) Pabst Beer is a distinct aid to true temperance, as well as a wholesome, refreshing beverage. One reason for its great popularity is the fact that doctors recommend it because of its absolute cleanness, purity, age and strength.

Pabst Blue Ribbon

is the most nutritious beer brewed because made from Pabst exclusive eight-day malt which retains in greatest degree the food value of the barley. This Pabst exclusive eight-day process malt doubles the cost but it makes Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer the superior of all American beers and accounts for its great popularity.

Every Girl Should Master the Art of Good Housekeeping

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE is one accomplishment that is never rated at its proper value, and that is the accomplishment of being a good housekeeper.

Girls are taught French and music and dancing and many other things useful or otherwise, but how many of them are taught to be capable, successful housekeepers?

No matter what a girl's life may be, whether she marries a rich man or a poor man, she ought to know how to run a house. She may have servants to do her bidding, or she may have to do the work herself, but in either case things will get into a sad muddle if she is ignorant of the laws of housekeeping.

Man, in his ignorance, imagines that housekeeping is the simplest thing in the world and that anyone could do it.

If his home is not comfortable he does a good deal of complaining. If it is comfortable he takes it for granted, and rarely gives his wife the praise she so thoroughly deserves.

A house is like any business concern; it must be well run in every department to make a successful whole.

Requires Tact

It requires patience, economy, neatness and infinite tact to make a household run smoothly.

In a large family there are sure to be a great many diversities of opinion. One will like one thing, another will like something else. Mary can't eat mutton; John likes it better than anything you can give him.

The housekeeper must cater to all and yet not be extravagant. She must remember all the individual likes and dislikes and please everybody.

No matter how hard and trying the day may be she must be cheerful and interested in what the absentees have been doing all day.

No one who has never kept house can realize how many domestic details can go wrong in one day. All little things, perhaps, but such irritating, troublesome little things that they are more annoying than one big thing would be.

Woman's Worries

A MAN would go distracted with the annoyances of a woman's average day.

When even a capable housekeeper has these annoyances to contend with, you can imagine how helpless an ignorant housekeeper feels when confronted by them.

Every mother should insist on her daughter learning something about housekeeping.

The late Queen Victoria of England had every one of her daughters take a thorough, practical course in all domestic branches.

The young princesses were taught to sew, to cook, to distinguish between the different cuts of meat. Had they married poor men they would have known how to go into the kitchen and cook.

Every woman is queen over her own little kingdom. She can make that kingdom a haven of comfort and happiness or she can make it a miserable failure.

The more she knows about housekeeping the easier it will be to make her kingdom a happy one.

A Reign of Dainty Lavender Perfume

THERE is no daintier odor for one's personal belongings than the indescribable scent of lavender and bunches of this fragrant herb are most acceptable when put up in attractive ways.

Many women who have beds of lavender make considerably more than their pin money by the sale of the dried stalks, and those who are ingenious as well as practical fashion the daintiest bags and sachets as receptacles for the sweet smelling herbs.

Various Uses

Lavender sachets of simple or elaborate material on which are embroidered a few sprigs with the words "Sweet Lavender" are used for scenting bureau drawers and linen closets, while the tiny muslin bags tied with baby ribbon and filled with lavender are frequently worn around the neck.

More elaborate are bags twice as long as they are wide that have the front of fine brown linen with silk initials embroidered in green and mauve stiks, and apparently thrown across and secured by a pearl-headed pin, tied by a stitch or so to the back of silk that is made in the green stalk. The back is lined with green, and green and lavender colored ribbon is put round. The size varies according to fancy and quantity.

Novel Sachet

A novel sachet takes the form of a green paper bag, tapering at the end, made of satin or silk over a muslin foundation, bound with ribbon and finished off with the same wound loosely round. The muslin bag of lavender is pushed tightly in and the top closed up. The top may be cut in two points, and either turned back or turned inward. The long shaped envelope of the fine linen, with the flap cut and curved toward the centre and buttonholed deeply with plain or shaded silk, look well in cases for the lavender bags. They vary from six to eight inches in length and nine inches in width. This includes the flap which should be deep.

Appropriate Design

Some appropriate little design must be worked above the buttonholed edge in the two points of the flap. A fancy button and loop close it.

Long, very narrow cases, a quarter of a yard long, to hold stalks with the heads on, are popular. Half of the stalks go one way and one-half another, so that the heads are at each end. The stalks have a sweetness of their own and are especially nice for putting with linen.

A lavender fan is a dainty article that is made of stalks of lavender and yards and yards of baby ribbon. Two rose buds are first folded down upon the sheet and the ribbon is woven closely and firmly between the stems. The stalks make a fine smooth handle, tapering toward the fan part.

The stems are pulled out into a fan shape and trimmed with scissors, making a rounded edge. The baby ribbon is then woven in and out between the stems, beginning about two inches above the handle, and at the top is a large rosette of loops of the ribbon.

YOUR FORTUNE IN A NUTSHELL

JANUARY—A maiden born in this month will be a prudent housekeeper, good tempered, but inclined to be melancholy.

February—Humane and affectionate; a tender parent.

March—A coutterieon, fickle, stormy and of a quarrelsome nature.

April—Pretty, dainty, inconsistent and not studious.

May—Handsome in person, contented and happy in spirit.

June—Gay, impetuous, and will marry early.

July—Fair to look on, but sulky in temper and jealous.

August—Amiable, practical and will make a wealthy marriage.

September—Discreet, amiable and a favorite with every one.

October—Pretty, coquettish and often times unhappy without a cause.

November—Liberal, kind and pleasant and thoughtful to others.

December—Well proportioned, gay, fond of novelty and inclined to be extravagant.

CLEANSING THE TEETH

IT is a mistake to suppose that the teeth of every person should be of the same whiteness. The variation of color is largely a constitutional result.

There is only one general rule to offer respecting the care of the teeth, and that is that they be kept immaculately clean and in perfect health. Their color then is not matters nothing, for their condition will prove that they are well attended to. The teeth should be cleaned after each meal.

The soft crush girdle is of chiffon velvet, a darker shade.

The skirt is cut in flaring gores; at set distances are clusters of horizontal tucks and rows of cloth-covered buttons.

THE HOUSE OF DOOM

By GEORGE BARRY BRONSON

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal Examiner

WITH womanly enthusiasm she told me of the kindness of the landlady, who would not allow her to mope there alone. She had taken her out to see her friends, wives of workingmen like herself, and they had gossiped, had tea, and discussed the affairs of the neighborhood.

"Tibbie," I said presently, after we had been chatting some time, "I am compelled to leave New York, and I confess I am very apprehensive on your behalf."

"Leave New York?" she exclaimed. "Why?"

"It is imperative. Winslow is watching me, and is doing all he can to discredit me. Every time I come here I run a great risk."

"I know," she said, frowning. "His spies are no doubt dogging your footsteps everywhere."

Plea for Flight

"Then your position here is unsafe. You would do better to escape from New York now, and hide in the country—say, in one of the larger cities up north."

"Yes; but the police are in search of me, remember. The mater and Jack have raised a hue and cry. They think I've met with foul play."

"Then all the more reason why you should slip out of New York. The country police are slower, and you will stand less chance of recognition."

She sighed, exclaiming:

"Ah, Wilfrid! it is cruel—cruel of them to hunt me down as they are now doing. Where shall I go? Where do you intend going?"

"Anywhere—out of New York. What about Rochester? Neither of us knows anyone there."

She was silent a moment, then said: "I am in your hands entirely, Wilfrid, and will go to Rochester if you think I can travel without being recognized."

"If I anticipated any risk I would not allow you to undertake it," I said. "We will go this evening."

"Very well," she answered. "As you wish. But before we go will you do me a favor? Go to the Echo office and put in an advertisement for me."

"An advertisement?" I exclaimed in surprise.

"Yes," she laughed, rather nervously. "I want to—I mean it is necessary that I should communicate with a friend."

I said nothing, but stood watching her as she took out half a sheet of note paper and commenced to write. She used pencil capitals and numerals—an advertisement apparently in the cipher which I had taken from the dead unknown.

Astonishment

Her action astounded me, but I managed to remain as though interested but ignorant.

"Why in this cipher?" I asked, when she handed it to me.

"Because—well, because I don't wish it to be read by other people. It is for the eye of one person only."

I glanced it in my turn without further comment, and after we had eaten together I went out to do her bidding.

While seated in the street car I took out the missive, message she had written, with the key, which I had fortunately secured along with me from Madison avenue, deciphered the words she had penned.

They read:

To Nello—Will make appointment when safe for us to meet. Know But Fair is in New York. I still trust you.

I sat staring at the paper like a man in a dream.

Was Tibbie, the woman I had promised to save, and for whose sake I was sacrificing everything—reputation, honor, even my life—actually playing me false?

How did she know that Fair was in New York? Was that really true?

And who was this Nello, to whom she sent messages of trust?

CHAPTER XIX.

Give Message to Nello.

LITTLE after 10 o'clock that night in our disguises as working people we walked through the business district of Rochester, and presently discovered a small hotel, where Tibbie found accommodations for the night.

Dressed as we were, Tibbie's trunk at the railroad station and the small valise I carried as our only luggage, I hesitated about going to one of the larger hotels, and, therefore, after we had had a modest supper in an out of the way restaurant, I bade her good night and went to find a bed for myself in an obscure hotel. Incon forable and annoying as all this secrecy and misrepresentation was, I still felt equal to it as long as I was assured that I was doing Tibbie a service, and that she was playing fair with me.

But I was still puzzled over the advertisement she had inserted for the cipher which I saw in the American the next day was the same as that I had received from Yet I could not admit knowing of the cipher without also admitting that I was in possession of the key. I showed her the advertisement in the paper, but she coolly smiled and thanked me, saying:

"I suppose you suspect that I am communicating with some sweetheart?"

"Well, Tibbie," I replied in as unconcerned a voice as I could muster, "I must admit that I am surprised. You seem somehow to be misleading me."

"Because I am compelled to do so," was her frank answer.

I longed to ask her directly who was the man Nello—as I took it for granted the name was used as a diminutive for Lionel, the man to whom she had sent her secret message of trust. We were walking through the shadowy park of the city discussing the advisability of taking a furnished room as we had done in New York, when, closely watching her companion's face, I said:

"Tibbie has disappeared. He left my rooms in Madison avenue some days ago, and I've heard nothing from him since. I am getting anxious."

Concealment

"Eric!" she echoed, "well, he's hardly the kind of man to disappear. He's I've often heard from his friends that he runs down very frequently and forgets to write. Perhaps he is in the West now."

She did not think that he was in New York—the statement she had made in secret to the man Nello—I knew.

Neither the police nor the Burnet family had the slightest suspicion that the sudden disappearance of Sibyl from her home in Hayside had any connection with the tragedy in Tenmante Wood, so near that home. I had made careful inquiry when I visited Hayside, and I had purposely made those inquiries in such a manner that I was not watched through the business disguise of Wheeler.

The whole family were, of course, extremely distressed, and I was compelled to play a double game, pretending to make every inquiry in New York, while I knew where she was so well known. I had been known to Tibbie as Fair in burying Iona seen at the Astor at supper, with two other ladies, and accompanied by both ladies at the suburban terminal of the New York Central, stories conveyed with a dual purpose, to reassure Jack and his mother that she was well, and also to mislead those who were so eagerly in search of her.

As we walked side by side through the city, I expressed regret that she could tell me nothing further.

"If I knew the truth," I said, "it would enable me to steer clear of pitfalls, and render your life happier and brighter."

"You are posing as my husband," she said, looking straight into my face with those wonderful eyes of hers, "and I offer sacrifice is surely great. Wilfrid, for one who loves you as I do, it is hard to see you who loves he will do anything—he will ruin himself for the sake of a woman, as so many do. But when love is absent it is all so different."

She shifted and turned her head away. She was a need, demure little figure in her close fitting black dress, her sailor toque, and her black cotton gloves, with the false bridge of matrimony underneath.

"I cannot for the life of me imagine what enjoyment I am to you—pretending to be your husband."

Tears

"Ah!" she said, "you will know everything some day—some day you will realize my awful peril," and her mouth closed tightly as tears welled in her eyes.

I did she refer to the crime in Tennant Woods?

Learn to Grow Old Gracefully; Don't Try to Hide Your Years

Growing Old Is a Curse to Women for the Simple Reason That They Choose to Make It So

By Caroline

ONE of the most precious lost arts of our time is the art of growing old gracefully.

This is particularly true of women, with whom the cult of youth has become more than a fad. It is an obsession that fills their waking thoughts and nightly dreams.

Every woman you know, past thirty has but one purpose in life, and that is to keep young. Every paper that you pick up has columns and pages devoted to telling its feminine readers how to massage away wrinkles, obliterate triple chins and avoid gray hair.

Every woman you meet spends hours in the privacy of her apartment, hopping around on one foot, or tying herself up into figures of eight in a vain attempt to preserve the waist measure of eighteen and the lissome grace of her vanished girlhood.

Search for Youth

BEYOND thirty the entire feminine population consists of a vast army of Ponce de Leons engaged in a frantic, nerve-wearing, heart-breaking search for the fountain of perpetual youth.

They do not find it, of course. They find the peroxide bottle and the complexion specialist and the stay-maker, that for a time seems a substitute for the thing they seek, and they cry out that they have found it, and that there are no more old women.

In a way this is true. There are few women who are frankly and serenely old, who have accepted age graciously and without regret, and who are enjoying the calm twilight of existence that is, perhaps, the most beautiful part of life, as it is the most beautiful part of the day.

There are not even any old women's fashions in our stores, or any old ladies' gowns in our households. Grandmamma wears picture hats covered with as many flowers and feathers and furbelows as her debutante granddaughter.

Flourishes in Cities

NOWHERE does the make-believe young woman flourish so plentifully as in the big cities. Ride on any car, sit in any theatre, dine at any restaurant, and you may see her on any side of you, with her wrinkles filled in with powder, her faded old cheeks painted vermillion, her scanty old eyebrows pencilled into the proper line, her dim old eyes looking all the dimmer under the elaborate bronze or gold of her false hair, her form padded pois laced into the tightness of her youthful girth, or the bones of her scrawny neck showing under strings of jewels.

Now in her attempt to be youthful confined to her appearance. Watch her struggle and twist in her attempts to be vivacious! See how she smirks and smiles and giggles, trying to be coquettish!

Listen to her conversation—more frivolous than the silliest school girl's—and pity the woman who cannot conjure back her youth, and to whom life has not brought the sweetness, dignity and wisdom of the age.

Women regard growing old as the greatest curse that can befall them, but that is only because they make it so.

All of us have known brilliant and beautiful young women, but when we think of the most attractive woman we have ever known, the tenderest and the most lovable, and the one whose charms abide with us longest, it is of some old woman, with snowy hair and peaceful eyes, wise and gracious in speech and manner, and a matter, into whose presence it was a rest and a benediction to come.

It is a great art for a woman to keep young, but it is the greatest art of all to learn how to grow old gracefully.

What a Well-Bred Woman Should Wear

TO a woman her dress is something dressed. The well-bred woman seeks something which, while quiet, looks beholdind, more than covering and ornament. If we are to believe notable students of the feminine exhibit, it is an index to her mind and a revelation of her good breeding, or its reverse.

A woman need not be dressed in silks and chiffons to be stamped a lady; indeed, she will look vulgar in these if they are totally inappropriate to the occasion and to her position.

The well-bred woman never does her marketing in an elaborate gown and feather hat, any more than she will visit a friend later in the day or go to church in the bedraggled garments which are suitable to the former occasion.

Suitability is the keynote of being well-climate and weather, to the wearer's age no less than her position. Of the look of a pleasant one which she is best.

collarless blouse or a transparent yoke in chilly weather or in the street is in the worse taste, because so manifestly unsuitable, and has never been on the well-bred girl; nor will she indulge a taste for frills and chiffons, charms and bangles, in those hours which she devotes to the serious business of her day.

Flaunting colors, extreme shapes and styles, excess of trimming, over-elaboration in haberdashing, and the lavish use of pungent perfumes, are apt to be avoided. A great authority on dress once said: "You can never go overdressed if people stop to stare at you."

Even when it be good and beautiful, should be worn sparingly, especially by the young, and seldom in the street.

How to Keep Your Servant Girl Contented

DON'T expect a servant to have an angel's temper when she is tired out and there is still the day's work to be done.

See that she gets a little time to herself in the evening, and encourage her in her amusements, her sewing, and so forth.

Don't be cross if she wants to keep a stray dog that hadn't a home and which you took in out of charity. She is as sensitive as you are, her feelings are just as acute.

In fact go out as often as you reasonably can without upsetting the home. All work and no play never developed anything yet.

Think twice before grumbling. If you are convinced that she has really been careless and unthoughtful, a scolding will be necessary; if not it might pay you to keep that dog quiet and to do it quietly. She will work none the worse for it.

BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Recipes

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 120 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form.

MINCE MEAT

ONE pound loin suet, chopped fine; two pounds currants, two pounds raisins, four quarts apples, one teaspoon each of cinnamon and allspice, one-half teaspoon salt, one wholewheat, one-half pound candied lemon, one-half pound candied citron, one pint sweet cider, sugar to taste. This is delicious.

MRS. M. A. SACK.
No. 885 Manton avenue, Providence, R. I.

LEMON PUDDING

SOAK for one-half hour one pint of bread crumbs in one quart of milk; then add the grated rind of two lemons, one cup of sugar, yolks of two eggs, a pinch of salt, and a piece of butter size of the bowl of a tablespoon. Bake until done; then cool just a little and frost with the whites of the eggs beaten to stiff froth first), then add one cup of sugar and juice of one lemon and put in together. Spread on the pudding and set in oven and brown just a little. This is very nice.

MRS. G. A. BENNETT.
No. 8 Lincoln street, Worcester.

APPLE JELLY

SELECT firm, well flavored, slightly tart apples; cut in quarters, remove any blemishes. It is not necessary to peel. To every dozen good-sized apples take a pint of cold water and a slice of lemon. Put together in the preserve kettle and boil twenty minutes. Count the time from when it begins to cook. Take from the fire, put through a jelly bag, let it drip (don't squeeze) and to every pint of juice add one pound sugar; cook for twenty minutes, test, and if it jellies put in glasses. Different kind of apples take varying times of cooking.

MARY E. DRAKE.
No. 667 Eighth street, South Boston.

SUET PUDDING

ONE egg, three-quarters cup molasses, one quarter cup sugar, one cup milk, one cup chopped suet, one cup raisins, one wholewheat flour, two and one-half cups of powder, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon each clove, cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice. Add pinch of salt. Steam two hours.

MRS. EVERETT FINNEY.
Collinsville, Plymouth, Mass.

SUNSHINE PUDDING

HAVE this real cold before serving and you find it fine. Wet two tablespoons corn starch in a little cold water, then stir it into one pint of boiling water until it thickens; add a little extract vanilla to taste, three-quarters of a cup of sugar, yolks of two eggs, beaten light; add to the mixture, let cool; slice three bananas in thin round slices, put some in glass dish, then the mixture and so on; have some of the bananas on top. Serve with soft custard, one pint of milk, yolks two eggs, one tablespoon corn starch, sugar to taste. Wet the corn starch with milk, then flavor with vanilla.

Years ago people used toothpicks—made of wood, silver and sometimes gold—to clean their teeth. Of course, the teeth weren't cleaned—only "picked." Times changed, and more sanitary methods prevailed.

Sozodont really cleans the teeth, removing every particle of accumulation. Sozodont is a wonder worker for the teeth.

Sozodont is made in three forms: liquid, powder and paste. Sozodont is sold everywhere.

Pianos Sacrificed
THE TAG THAT TELLS THE TALE
ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOM SACRIFICE TAG
ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOM
For Extreme Sale Beginning Week of MONDAY, NOV. 12, '06
CUT. SELL. AT $325 $75
A Piano has been in always a sacrifice, always a bargain, but at this sale it will be a gift. For months we have been collecting the finest pianos in the world, pianos of every description, from the cheapest to the best, and have stored them in our warehouse. Many pianos have been sent to us from the homes of people who have moved into flats and apartments, and who could not take their pianos with them, and were glad to send them to us to be sold on commission. Many pianos have been sent to us by dealers who have taken them in exchange for pianos of higher grade, and it is our duty to the first dealer or woman who wants it, to get rid of them at once. We have no room for them. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesroom Sacrifice Tag, and the tag that is figured to the lowest cash and time without regard to profit—no rent can exist—no interest. Some fine sales must necessarily be sacrifices.
3 MONTHS' PIANO LESSONS FREE to anyone buying a piano at this sale. Call or write for full information call at Roxbury Storage Salesroom, 3 Dudley st., Roxbury.
Several of below names left, will be sold this week regardless of cost:

WATCH THE CAMERA MAN; HE'S APT TO GET YOU

He Catches One Woman Shopper Every Weekday in the Retail District.

JUST like finding money, isn't it? Easiest way in the world to win $2, isn't it? Why, it's the plainest proposition ever made.
Here it is in a nutshell. The BOSTON AMERICAN Camera Man circulates every day about noontime in the vicinity of stores patronized by readers of this newspaper. He takes one snapshot of a woman shopper daily.
When the picture is printed the original of the photograph may call and identify herself as the snapshot and receives a reward of $2 for her trouble. If she can't do this she sends a photograph of herself, and if she's "it" the picture is clinched and she gets the money.
Keep your eye on the Camera Man. He may catch you any day.

Yearly Elections "Too Expensive"

The Trusts Would Like to Have Their Candidates Hold Office Longer, to Save Money

The corporations that invest in candidates for office have started a movement to have the Legislature meet only once in two years, and to have State officials hold office for two years.

The reason given for this change is that the holding of elections every year is too expensive.

From the trust point of view this may be true.

This last election, certainly, WAS very expensive for the trusts. It would be still MORE expensive for the State if the trust candidates were to be sure of two years in office, instead of one year.

Fortunately, there is little chance of the constitution being changed in this respect.

The people have voted on this question before, and have voted against it.

They prefer to pass judgment on their servants in office EVERY YEAR.

Peary and the North Pole

His DETERMINATION Is Worth Imitating, if Not His Purpose

Lieutenant Peary, a brave and resolute man, has just returned from his third attempt to reach the North Pole, and he is going back to make a fourth attempt.

The human race has existed for many centuries without absolute knowledge of the North Pole, and has not been seriously handicapped by its ignorance in that regard, but, whether Peary is right or wrong in his willingness to risk his own life and the lives of others for the glory of making the discovery, the world must give him credit for one great quality—DETERMINATION.

It is determination like Peary's that has given us our civilization and our progress. When it is coupled with a high and noble purpose it can accomplish almost anything that is good—just as it can accomplish any amount of evil when the purpose happens to be bad.

Fortunately, most of the great men of history had worthier objects than Peary's.

Columbus, hoping to find for his royal Spanish employers a more direct way to the Indian coast, stumbled on America, but it was only after the exercise of determination, before and after equipping his fleet, that makes the modern polar expedition seem almost like a pleasure excursion.

After Columbus, and perhaps before him, were other equally determined mariners who in a comparatively few years dispelled the known world's ignorance of the rest of the world and discovered and began the settlement of every country not already partially civilized or buried deep under forbidding snow and ice.

NOW there is nothing left to discover save the poles, and, while the sight by living man of the particular icebergs or open water that surround them will not be of enormous benefit either to the discoverer or his fellow men, it is pleasing to know that there is in the world one man who is ABSOLUTELY RESOLVED to do one thing nobody else has done or can do.

There ought to be many Pearys in the world; but they ought to be doing something better than sailing Arctic seas after relatively unimportant geographical information.

Such resolution and concentration of purpose are exactly what the race needs to keep it on the road of progress. And even determination like Peary's, which has to do with nothing but the North Pole, or like Rockefeller's, which is concerned with nothing but money and more money, is better than the utter lack of any determination at all, which is the trouble with most men.

A single scientist working through long years to find a cure for consumption or cancer is worth a million Rockefellers and a million Pearys, but only with determination like theirs will he be able to do the great work he has set out to do.

The succession of inventors who, each studying the work of his predecessor, and going further, have given us the steam engine, the telegraph and telephone, have taught us to make solid rock of shifting sand by binding it with cement, and have harnessed the sun and made it do, indirectly, a large share of the world's work, are illustrations of the right kind of determination united with the right kind of purpose.

They do not attract as much attention as Peary or Rockefeller because they work more quietly, and often one builds upon the work of another, as the tiny coral insects build upon their fellows to form an island.

But Peary's determination is just as important as that of men who do greater things, and if it has no other USEFUL result than to teach other men its value it will make Peary's voyages toward the North Pole of far greater benefit than its possible future discovery.

And, while Rockefeller has misused his wonderful will power, if his life teaches other men to imitate HIS WILL POWER ALONE, and devote the imitation to doing something really worth while, the old money king will have accomplished more good than could be accomplished by all the universities his great pile of dollars could establish and maintain.

Hughes Elected by Traitors to Democracy

THE following is from the address of Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, Lieutenant-Governor-elect of New York, at a banquet given to William Randolph Hearst by his running mates on the ticket:

GENTLEMEN—As is of of you is prejudiced if not purchased press know, this dinner was hurriedly arranged by those candidates for State office upon the State ticket who were successful, and who realize that their success was due to one cause, and to one cause alone, and that was the tremendous campaign against organized corruption so nobly fought by him who was, and who to-night is, our leader. (Applause.)

As to the cause of his defeat, there can be little discussion. He was beaten by the votes of Democrats under this organization of those who feared for their own political existence should he be elected and of those who feared for their own financial existence should he be in a position to expose their actions in the past.

For my part, I think the time has come when the Democratic party should realize that it is to be the party of the future, it should recognize as Democrats only those who are Democrats all the year round and not only on election day, and who owe their allegiance to the principles of Democracy, and not to two years, when we do not know what those who, by the power which they to do or where to go for guidance, turn temporarily express, can be of advantage to those so-called Democrats when by him during this campaign, and to they happen to be in power.

I cannot give any more accurate description of the defeat of Mr. Hearst than this: He was defeated by those know what to do, let us say in one Democrats, many of them, who know another, "What would he have had us him so well that they feared to see do were he here?"

him Governor of this State, because If we do that, whatever our mistakes they knew as Governor he would keep may be, they will be individual errors his word, and that false Democrats of inexperienced men; but if we are would never flourish under his rule as guided by his platform, if we realize Governor.

He was also defeated to a certain during the next two years that whatextent, by those Democrats who did that platform and from his enunciaknow him, and who, terrified by tion of those principles, we cannot go the false and malicious utterances of far astray.

THE BEAR WAS COMING TOWARD ME, FULL SWING, WHEN I UP WITH MY TRUSTY RIFLE, AND, CATCHING HIM SQUARE IN THE CHEST, HE FALLS, BUT IS AFTER ME AGAIN IN A MOMENT!
AND NOW, HAULING OUT MY $2.98 HUNTING KNIFE, I SAYS TO MYSELF, "BRAGGO, THIS IS THE CRITICAL MOMENT OF YOUR LIFE."
AND, CLOSING IN, WE WERE SOON ENGAGED IN THE DEADLIEST STRUGGLE THAT EVER THE WILDERNESS WITNESSED. I, OF COURSE, ON TOP.
HE SOON FOUND OUT I WAS THE CANDY, AND HE THE LEMON,— AND WITH ONE FINAL—!...!...!..

Count Boni's Love Lyric

By William F. Kirk

ACROSS the lighted boulevards
The happy crowds are straying;
Think, Countess, of the happy hours
When we two went a-Maying.
When we two went a-Maying, Dieu!
My creditors were trusting;
For with your francs, oh, heart of mine!
My pocketbook was busting.

REFRAIN:

Come back, my sweet, my princess!
Don't leave me to my fate!
The silvery moon and the constable are peering through the gate.
Beyond our mortgaged castle I hear a
night bird chirp;
Don't leave me, precious Anna, to perish like a purp!

DEAR heart of gold, I kiss thee
Upon each marble cheek;
Fly to my arms—or mail me
Ten thousand francs a week.
Ten thousand francs a week, ma chere,
Or, twenty, if you can:
Don't cut me off, loved Anna,
Forgive your poor old man!

REFRAIN:

Light of my life! Adored one! Thy name I whisper low
To loan sharks, lawyers, tailors—but the harpies will not go!
Beyond our mortgaged castle I hear a
night bird chirp;
Don't leave me, precious Anna, to perish like a purp!

INJUNS

INJUNS is the people that stood on the shoars of America when Columbus landed from his big ship and thay sed "O look who's here!" injuns is of 2 kinds, wild & tame, the tame injuns are on reservashuns planting corn & the wild injuns are seen in the various buffays of our city & other grate citys, the tame injuns are vary peeceeble & the wild injuns are vary noisy, singing "Thare was I Walking at the Church," etc.

the first injuns in this country was mostly good & genial, until the white men cam with guns & wiskey & beeds, then the white men went to the injuns & sed Well, we want to help you to be civilized, we will trade you six beads & a good drink of wiskey for 140 acres of yure best land, & the injuns was glad to trade & as the white men had one milyun beads thay got pritty neerly all the red estate & mister rockefeller got the rest, so the poor injuns got meen & since then they have never been the same nobel red men which thay was before thay sed "O look who's here!"

To Wage Earners

An Appeal on Behalf of Organized Labor to Vote Against Gartland, the Corporation Candidate for Alderman, Who Helped Kill the Overtime Bill

LABOR'S demand for fair legislation has continually been thwarted by unscrupulous misrepresentative legislators, therefore the voice of the oppressed laborer has been unanimously raised, and he has decided with grim determination to administer a deserved rebuke to such men who have repeatedly betrayed the confidence reposed in them by their constituents.

As a result of such abuse, labor's emissaries, in conjunction with the noble stand taken by the wage-workers in the State election, defeated the following men for re-election, owing to their antagonistic attitude towards labor legislation, especially the overtime bill, picketing, public opinion and eight-hour bills: John M. Graveyore, Horton H. Hilton, Daniel W. Lane, Harris Hunter, Rodman Peabody and several others.

It is now incumbent upon the voters of Wards 9 and 10 to administer the same punishment of defeat to John J. Gartland, Jr., as he is guilty with the men named above of similar actions to those charged against them.

We request all the voters to attend the primaries on November 15th, and then and there let your votes against him notify John J. Gartland, Jr., that you will not allow his presence in the Board of Aldermen during the year of 1907, and that you will not permit him to betray the trust you have confided in him during the past years.

"Peter Pan"

By Charles Fleischer

(RABBI TEMPLE ADATH ISRAEL)

"Every man with the heart of a child is a Peter Pan."

BLESSINGS on the person who raises two laughs where only one had been heard before. A hearty laugh is a renewer of youth. Blessings, therefore, on "Peter Pan" and on his creators, Mr. Barrie and Maude Adams!

"Stop, my friend, as you pass by!" Or, rather, do not pass by—for this is no advertisement, as you had thought. Bless you, too, "Peter Pan" and his makers are past being advertised. They have become classic.

Have you seen "Peter Pan"? No. Then go! Oh, you have been there! Well, then, go again! It will do you good. It will sweep the cobwebs out of your heart. It will make you young again, or prove to you that you never have grown old.

The other day a friend fairly exasperated me by saying she thought "Peter Pan" silly.

"W-w-well, then," I sputtered, "you, you are—no longer a child."

What worse name could I call her? Now I was sure that the gods did not love her, that she could never die young.

I remember once addressing the 1,000 girls of Smith College and appealing to them to get old quickly and then to become children again. It seems to me that just this means success in the art of living: To learn early the necessary lessons of life not to get old in the process, and to grow in truth to the responsive heart of the child, the open mind, the positive soul.

Now, "Peter Pan" probably exists "just for fun." All the same, he can hardly help teaching us a thing or two. That eternal youth runs away from home the day he is born. Why? Because he wants never to grow up, never to be President. As a good American he seems equally to fear both.

Most of us keep sighing for the Golden Age of childhood, when life was simple and free. But what's the use of that vain sighing and whose is the need of it, when what the playbill tells us is gospel truth. "Every man with the heart of a boy is a Peter Pan"? Some of the finest men I know are just great grown-up boys.

No doubt of it at all, all, that our joy in children lies largely in the survival of childhood within ourselves. That part of the kingdom of Heaven is surely within us. See how easily one baby in the household makes babies of us all in our efforts to entertain it.

It is a virtue to acquire, if one has it not, this quality of being or becoming as a little child, so that one may die young at a hundred.

Go and see "Peter Pan." He will awaken the Everlasting Child within you.
